IN WAKE OF RACE RIOTS

NRA Magazine Urging Urban Vigilante Groups

BY BEN A. FRANKLIN

WASHINGTON — The National Rifle Association has urged its 800,000 members to form armed civilian posses to provide "a potential community stabilizer" against urban rioting.

The association has told its membership that "the best police on earth, alone, cannot stem the kind of mob violence that has swept many American cities."

Nine of the 11 urban disorders cited in the May issue of the association's magazine as "mob action or a scale unprecedented in the modern United States" were clashes involving negroes.

For home protection, the magazine, "The American Rifleman," a monthly, recommends the 12-gauge shotgun, loaded with 27 pellets of No. 4 buckshot.

The current issue devotes five of 16 pages given to articles and comment on the association's drive against gun control legislation to the threat of civil disorder and intruders in the home.

The magazine's editorial, entitled "Who Guards America's Homes?" asserts that "the fact that some of the beer that had been given to other juveniles led to the arrest of the suspects, Peterson said.

Police Arrest Four in Local Beer Burglary

An 18-year-old North Warren youth and three juveniles were apprehended Saturday by borough police officer Edward E. Peterson following a week-long investigation.

Charged with burglary are Dwight E. Jayne, 18, of 21 Timothy st., North Warren and three other youths, two age 15 and one age 14.

Peterson said the quartet pried open a roof door at the James Connelly Beer Distributing Co. at 206 Pennsylvania ave. E. on April 29 and took 13 six-packs of beer and ale.

Presidential Group Would Rearrange Lower Court System

BY FRED P. GRAHAM

WASHINGTON — The inequities of assembly-line justice in the lower criminal courts in the United States are hindering efforts at crime prevention, the President's National Crime Commission said yesterday.

The commission reported widespread "inequity, indignity and ineffectiveness" in the country's misdemeanor courts, where about 90 per cent of the criminal cases are heard.

"No program of crime prevention will be effective without a massive overhaul of the lower criminal courts," the commission concluded.

"The many persons who encounter these courts each year can hardly fail to interpret that experience as an expression of indifference to their situations and to the ideals of fairness, equality, and rehabilitation professed in theory, yet frequently denied in practice," it said.

The statements were made in a special task force report on the courts by the commission, which is officially named the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of justice.

Some of the court abuses result from criminal laws that are largely unenforced, the report said.

It suggested that laws concerning gambling, prostitution, abortion, homosexuality and narcotics might well be modified "to bring the written law in closer conformity to the law as it in fact operates."

Among the suggested changes were that gambling sponsored by religious groups and among friends be made lawful, the anti-prostitution laws focus on "commercial" and public activities as compared with more casual activities and that there be an effort to discourage the use of nonsupport and bad check criminal laws to collect money.

This is the second of nine detailed reports to be released over the next two months to document recommendations contained in the commission's report, published in February.

As examples of the overloading of lower court judges, it cited the municipal courts of Atlanta, where three judges disposed of more than 70,000 cases in 1964, and Detroit, where 20,000 minor cases must be handled each year by the single judge sitting in the early sessions division.

"Clearing the dockets becomes a primary objective," of such courts the commission said. It said judges rushed through trials in as little as five minutes, sometimes not advising defendants of their rights, and that the few lawyers who appeared often seemed more interested in extracting a fee than defending their clients.

The commission saw no rational reason for conducting separate courts for misdemeanor — offenses involving prison terms of a year or less — and felonies. It recommended the abolition of all lower courts, so that all cases would be heard in the courts that now handle serious offenses.

Unequal and harsh sentencing also came in for criticism from the commission. It cited wide disparities between the average sentences meted out in different areas and by different judges for the same offense. One suggested remedy was to require that judges confer with each other before imposing any sentence.

Sue Houston Named Regent of Adelines

Sue Houston, director of the Warren Chapter of Sweet Adelines, was elected this weekend to the office of regent of Region 16 of Sweet Adelines.

It is the highest regional office in the organization. On hand to witness her election at the convention over the weekend were members of the Warren Chapter. The convention was held in Pittsburgh at the Hilton Hotel, with 1,000 persons from Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, and Canada.

Mrs. Houston founded the Warren Chapter and served as the first president from 1963 through 1964. She has been a show chairman and assistant director and served on several committees for the organization. Her regional activities have included representing Warren as a council member and serving on the regional nominating committee and the quartet and chorus group.

SUE HOUSTON

motion committee. She has attended Sweet Adelines music schools at West Point, N.Y., and Philadelphia.

She served as a chapter delegate at the international convention held in Houston, Texas, as a member of a competing quartet.

Her musical arrangements are sung by the Warren chorus and the Barber-Sals quartet, in which she sings lead. One of her arrangements has been published in "Pitch Pipe," the official magazine of Sweet Adelines.

She is the wife of William Houston and resides at 137 Calender st., Warren.

The Barber-Sals were among 18 quartets competing in Pittsburgh this weekend. First place was the Sky-His of Cleveland. Representing Warren were Mrs. Houston, Joyce Hishman, Bev Peterson, and Floppy Stevenson. Charlene Hennessy of the Warren chapter was a candidate judge in the showmanship category.

Carole Lazarus and Joan Harrison represented Warren at the delegates' table. The Jamestown, N.Y. chapter won an award for the chorus performing the greatest number of singing engagements during the past year.

The regional banner, designed by Carol Lazarus of Warren was displayed at the meeting for the first time.

Ohio Boy Killed by Pony's Kick

Four-year-old Paul Hamilton Baker was pronounced dead in Warren General Hospital at 3:35 p.m. Saturday after he was apparently kicked by a pony in the back yard of his grandfather's house at 1233 Pleasant dr.

The victim, the son of Russell N. and Sherry Baker of 750 E. 133rd st., Cleveland, Ohio, was playing near what was considered a mild-mannered pony when his parents heard the child cry out and saw him rolling on the grass.

He was then taken by his parents to the hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival five minutes later.

County Coroner Ross Bryan issued a certificate of accidental death. He said death resulted from injury to the brain stem and spinal cord from a fractured neck.

No hoof marks were found on the boy. The coroner listed that death resulted from the victim being struck by a pony. The pony was owned by the child's grandfather, Kenneth Baker.

STARBRICK: 'TRAILER CITY'

Starbrick, which straddles Route 6 about four miles west of Warren, has more mobile homes than houses, as this aerial photo shows. The zoning in the area makes mobile homes possible in that area without variance, the county planning office reported in an inquiry yesterday. In this photo, about 130 trailers are shown in the area of Starbrick from the drive-in theater at the left to almost the end of Starbrick's populated area on the right. The mobile home court in the foreground has 37, the one just behind it has 58, another in the far left near the drive-in has 18, and the fourth (to right of Route 6 and Yankee Bus Road intersection) has 16. The land from the river to Route 6 is zoned industrial and from Route 6 to the top of the photo is zoned industrial, residential, or agricultural. (Photo by Stoke)

Publisher Admits CIA Subsidization

NEW YORK (AP) — A California newspaper publisher revealed yesterday that he created the Central Intelligence Agency program to subsidize student, labor and cultural groups. He defended it as successful in infiltrating every field where international Communist fronts were operating.

Thomas W. Braden, former president of the California Board of Education, a California state college trustee and publisher of the Oceanside Blade-Tribune, said that without the program much of Europe, especially Italy and France, "probably would have gone Communist."

Outlining how he helped run the program, Braden wrote in the May 20 issue of the Saturday Evening Post that the "vast and secret" operation was killed by "small-minded and resentful men."

"In my opinion—then and now—it was essential," Braden wrote. "Was it 'immoral,' 'wrong,' 'disgraceful'? Only in the sense that war itself is immoral, wrong and disgraceful. For the cold war was and is a

Violent Weather Plagues South; Tornadoes, Rain

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Violent weather continued in parts of the South yesterday after a turbulent night of tornadoes and torrential downpours.

The South Carolina Highway Patrol reported a tornado Sunday near Moncks Corner, about 25 miles north of Charleston.

Rainfall Prevalent In State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Drenching rains fell over most of Pennsylvania yesterday bringing forecasts of cresting streams in the southeastern and southwestern corners of the state. But clearing or partly cloudy weather today was expected to curtail possibly heavy or pro-longed flooding of low areas.

In eastern Pennsylvania, rain ranged from 1.30 inch during a 12-hour period in Philadelphia to .43 inches for the same period in the Scranton-Wilkes-Barre area.

Harrisburg record 1.02 inches in 12 hours and the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton Weather Bureau measured 1.16 at the same time.

The rains were expected to bring Brandywine Creek at Chadds Ford, Delaware County, to 9½ to 10 feet by early Monday morning. Flood stage there is 9 feet.

The Schuylkill River is expected to crest at 8 to 9 feet Monday at Philadelphia's Fairmount dam, where the flood stage is 11 feet, and at 7 to 8 feet in Pottstown, where flood stage is also 11 feet.

In southwestern Pennsylvania, the Monongahela is expected to reach bankfull stages by Monday morning, but river forecasters saw no immediate threat of flooding. The river is expected to go above floodstage upstream at Clarksburg, W. Va.

Forecasters said three to 3½ inches of rain fell over the Monongahela basin in a 24-hour period beginning Saturday.

Monongahela River Flood Warning Given by Weatherman

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Weather Bureau said yesterday heavy rains over a 24-hour period are expected to send the Monongahela River one to two feet above flood stage at Weston and Clarksburg in West Virginia.

Farther downstream in southwestern Pennsylvania, river forecasters said, the Monongahela is expected to reach bank full stages by this morning, but said there appeared to be no threat of flooding.

The forecasters said three to three and one-half inches of rain fell over the Monongahela basin in a 24-hour period beginning Saturday.

Japan is the country with the highest suicide rate. The country with the lowest rate is Egypt.

No one was reported injured and only minor damage was done.

A tornado watch was in effect from southeastern Georgia to southeastern Virginia.

The Greater Birmingham, Ala., area suffered tornado strikes during the night and heavy rains flooded the streets strewn with debris. A record 3.85 inches of rain fell in Birmingham late Saturday.

The tornadoes killed one person and injured 18 others.

Locally heavy amounts of rain doused an area from the upper Ohio Valley across the mid-Atlantic states and southern New England. Salisbury, Md., recorded 1.17 inches of rain in six hours yesterday and Baltimore measured 1.13 in a sim-lar span. In 24 hours Baltimore's total was 1.80 inches. Severe 30-to-40 mile an hour winds whirled around the Pennsylvania storm center. Gusts of more than 50 m.p.h. were reported at Beckley, W. Va., Blairsville, Pa., and at the lake front airport in Cleveland.

Gale warnings were posted for Lake Ontario and Lake Erie and for the coast of New England as the storm center moved toward the Northeast.

Cold air swept across the north central states borne on 30 to 50 mile an hour winds. Scattered showers dotted an area from the Dakotas and northern Nebraska to western Wisconsin. Scattered showers also were reported from Washington to central Montana.

Joe(Bananas)Bonanno Regains Cosa Nostra Control

By Charles Grutzner
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—Joseph (Joe Bananas) Bonanno has returned to a position of influence and profit in the Mafia gang from whose leadership he was forced at gunpoint two and a half years ago, according to local and federal law-enforcement officers.
They say the 62-year-old underworld chieftain's comeback was maneuvered by his eldest son and heir apparent, 34-year-old Salvatore, sometimes called Bill.
Salvatore escaped from a fusillade of bullets in Brooklyn early last year after challenging the authority of Gaspare DiGregorio, who had supplanted the elder Bonanno as leader of the gang, or family, with the approval of the Mafia's 12-member national commission. That shooting began a sequence of events that led to Joseph Bonanno's recent restoration.
The story of those events and their meaning has been pieced together through weeks of investigation by The New York Times in this country and in Canada, where police records have been examined and dozens of government officials, state or provincial prosecutors, local police officers and detectives and other knowledgeable persons have been interviewed.
The transition has taken place against a background of shifting allegiances that turn cousin against cousin, godfather against godson; a plague of heart attacks that killed one interregnum caretaker and inactivated several adversaries; international underworld intrigue; financial lures; and vengeful passions in the gang of more than 250 members.
Law-enforcement officers say they have confirmed Bonanno's emergence from exile through underworld informers, around-the-clock surveillance of key Mafiosi and the observation of such changes as new "street men" taking bets for bookmakers or handling collections for loan sharks in scattered areas.
A return to power of a banished leader is rare in the Mafia. A federal official described it as less in the nature of a coup than an attempt to ease a potentially explosive situation. He expressed the belief that the Mafia national commission had acquiesced to Bonanno's restoration because DiGregorio had proved unable to control the varied rackets in the farflung family empire.
However, the present situation is still volatile, and other changes may follow, according to investigators. They do not rule out the possibility of further gunplay. There is bad blood between Bonanno and Stefano Magaddino, the leader of a Mafia family whose domain extends from Western New York into the Ohio Valley and Canada. Magaddino, a member of the national commission, sponsored DiGregorio as Bonanno's successor.

Rotarians To Control Radio Today

Today is the third annual Rotary Radio Day. Members of Warren Rotary Club will take over in teams over WNAE-WRRN-FM as announcers—all during the day from 10 a.m. until sign off at 7:30 p.m.
Proceeds from the radio spot announcements the Rotarians solicited from business firms and individuals in the county will go for Rotary service projects such as the Crippled Children's Committee of Warren County.
From 10 to 10:30 a.m., Ed Johnson and Shurl Glass are on the air. Julius L. Thorn and Arnold Whren relieve them to serve from 10:30 to 11 a.m. From 11 to 11:30 Bill Walker and Nell Culbertson hold forth. The voices of Paul Henning and Art Lydell are heard from 11:30 to noon. At 1 p.m. Dr. David K. Rice and Dick Munch team up. From 1:30 to 2 p.m., J.F. McAmbly and John Malley do the honors.
Bill Lutz and Henry Wuesthoff are announcing from 2 to 2:30. William E. Yeager Sr. and J.D. Haggerty Jr. will lend their tones to the broadcast from 3 to 3:30. Then William E. Yeager Jr. and John Kofod will show how it is done properly from 3:30 to 4.
Experts F. Everett Borg and Arlyn Dunham will read the spots from 4 to 4:30. John R. Hartley and Harold S. Hampson will lend their voices to the airwaves from 4:30 to 5. Dan Morse and Plue Wendleboe will have radio spots before their eyes and in the listeners ears from 5 to 5:15 p.m. From 5:15 to 6:30 Paul Randolph and Ted Kottraba will announce over WNAE.
Alfred L. Lauffenberger and Ward M. Sharp will provide the voices of experience from 6:30 to 7 p.m. Bernie Wingert and John H. Huey will take over at 7 and stay on the airways until signoff time at 7:30—and close up the shop on another successful Rotary Radio Day.

Mental Health Seminar Today

Robert M. Curtis, executive director of the Mental Health Association of Erie County, will be one of seven panelists to discuss the state's new mental health program at a public meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. today at the Northwest Savings and Loan Co. All interested persons are urged to attend.

Vatican Issues Coins
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Eight Vatican coins with a new portrait of Pope Paul VI will be issued June 29.

Joseph Bonanno, a native of Castellammare Del Golfo in Sicily, was 19 years old when he entered this country illegally from Havana in 1924. He went into the laundry business, the nonunion garment industry and became a partner in a funeral parlor in Brooklyn, where he took the first steps along the path investigators say has made him a millionaire on the profits of a variety of rackets and legitimate businesses in which he later invested some of his illegal gains.
The only conviction on his record is for violation of the federal wages and hours law, despite arrests on many charges, including running machine guns to the Al Capone mob in Chicago.
After leaving this country briefly in 1938, Bonanno made a legal re-entry from Canada to Detroit. He became a naturalized citizen in 1945. For some years thereafter, he conducted his mushrooming enterprises almost anonymously behind a screen of high-priced lawyers and protective henchmen.
Bonanno's reputed leadership in the underworld became a matter of public record when, in testimony before Senate investigating committees, he was named as the head of one of the five Mafia families centered in the New York metropolitan area. Members of a Mafia group are known as a family but are not necessarily blood relatives. The other four families, according to the police and the FBI, are those headed by Vito Genovese, now in prison under a 20-year sentence for narcotics and conspiracy; Carlo Gambino, Thomas (Three Finger Brown) Luchese and Joseph Colombo.
Bonanno's financial interests reportedly extend from coast to coast. He has a home in Tucson, Ariz., where he has extensive real estate holdings, dairy interests in Wisconsin, investments in Canada and allegedly a share of the legal gambling in Haiti.
Unlike the nattily dressed, jaunty Bonanno, DiGregorio was little known, even within the Mafia, when he was chosen as Bonanno's successor. Officers say this took place at a "sit-down" of metropolitan area bosses and consiglieri (counselors) in the Capri Restaurant in Cedarhurst, N.Y., in January, 1965, with Bonanno absent.
DiGregorio's best recommendations for the job were reportedly that he was sponsored by the powerful Magaddino, to whom he was related by marriage, and the fact that he was a "sleeper"—a man never convicted of a crime and who could pass unnoticed in any gathering.
DiGregorio is 62, the same age as Joseph Bonanno. He was born in Castellammare Trapani, within five miles of Bonanno's childhood home.
DiGregorio had been arrested in Brooklyn in 1934 on a charge of homicide with a gun, but the case was dismissed in court. He lives on a modest scale in West Babylon, N.Y., and has a garment factory in Brooklyn.

Under the Mafia franchise system, the boss of each family gets a cut of the profits of all enterprises in which his followers are engaged, according to law-enforcement agencies.
The head of a sports betting book or policy bank, the loan shark, the smuggler of untaxed cigarettes, the garbage disposal racketeer or the entrepreneur who has just brought in a narcotics shipment from Canada or Europe sends his tribute through channels to the family boss, even though the two may never have direct contact.
This insulation of the boss from direct contact with the criminals who actually handle the rackets is one of the factors that makes the conviction of the top men difficult even when underlings are caught red-handed.
Another is the silence of Mafia members. Federal and Kings County grand juries are currently questioning members of both the Bonanno and DiGregorio factions, several of whom have been sent to jail for refusing to give responsive answers. However, a few members have been talking behind closed doors of grand jury rooms.
The elder Bonanno's fall from power within the Mafia came on Oct. 21, 1964, as he and his lawyer, William Power Maloney, were bidding each other good night in front of Maloney's Park Ave. home.
Two men shoved Bonanno into a car and drove off. Maloney told the police later that one of the kidnapers had said, "Come on, Joe. My boss wants to see you," and fired a shot at him (Maloney) when he sought to run to the car.
The FBI believed the kidnaping had been ordered by the Mafia high council because Bonanno plotted to have Gambino and Luchese killed.
Authorities believe Bonanno was turned loose a few days later, after his captors had exacted his promise to surrender his leadership. But Bonanno remained in hiding for 19 months until he walked into the federal courthouse here on May 17, 1966, and gave himself up. He is under $150,000 bail, awaiting trial for conspiracy to obstruct justice in having wilfully failed to appear before the grand jury.

DiGregorio suffered a heart attack a few months after he became boss. Investigators say he chose two overseers, neither of whom had the stature to command obedience of the rank and file. Some of the lesser racketeers stopped sending in money. Some offered to support with guns and money any revolt Salvatore Bonanno might lead.

The storm broke with gunfire on Friday night, Jan. 2, 1966. The quiet of the rundown Ridgewood section of Brooklyn was shattered by more than 20 shots. By the time the police arrived, the combatants had fled, leaving neither dead nor wounded.
As the police reconstructed the happening, Salvatore had met with some followers to assess his strength. The DiGregorio faction got wind of the meeting and made a sortie in an attempt to kill Salvatore or else scare him into abandoning the role of pretender to the throne. The latter seemed the more likely, in view of the fact that none of the bullets had found a human mark.
An investigation of the incident quickly expanded into a full-scale inquiry into the whole Bonanno empire. Witnesses from both the Bonanno and DiGregorio camps were brought before the grand jury. Most of them refused to give a responsive answer, even after being offered immunity.
Among those who went to jail for 30 days rather than break the Mafia code of silence was Salvatore Bonanno.
The nervousness of members of the competing factions is indicated by an incident on June 1. A nurse in University Hospital was tying up the private room of Angelo (Little Moe) Presenzano, a DiGregorio henchman, who was there for surgery. She found in his night table a loaded .38-caliber revolver, protection he evidently felt he needed inside a hospital. The police identified it as one of 71 stolen from a West Side railroad siding.
Because Presenzano was convicted for robbery back in 1928, his conviction for possession of the revolver made him a second offender and he was sent to prison for 10 years.
The shooting last July of a hoodlum named Frank Mari was initially regarded as so insignificant that it was not even reported in the newspapers. But it developed that Mari was a member of the Bonanno family who had accepted DiGregorio as the new leader.
The shooting of Mari, seen as a reprisal against the DiGregorio faction for its Ridgewood sortie a few months earlier, led other members of the mob to shift their allegiance from DiGregorio to Bonanno, according to information gleaned from police informers.

Lander VFD Stages Drill; Surrounding Crews Respond

How effective are the surrounding volunteer fire departments and what would happen should Eisenhower High School catch on fire?
In seeking the answer to these two questions Fire Chief William Schumann of Lander Volunteer Fire Department staged a full scale drill yesterday morning at the high school.
At 10 a.m. a drill began in which Eisenhower school was the fire target. Despite having to take a detour the Lander crew arrived at the high school 12 minutes later and immediately began to pump water from their trucks onto the building.
Following close behind came fire units from Russell and North Warren and then came Busti, N.Y.; Sugar Grove, Kentucky, N.Y.; Lakewood, N.Y., Frewsburg, N.Y. and finally Celeron, N.Y.
As the crews arrived they assumed pre-planned positions and established several long hose lines from a stream three-tenths of a mile away and from the nearest pond, a pond on the Ronald Hartley property about one-half mile away.
According to Chief Schumann water was being pumped from portable pumps from both water sources by 10:45 with only minor errors occurring from the fire units in spreading hose. While the drill was not a perfect one the units worked together as a body hooking hoses and the chief added he learned a great deal.

The New York State fire departments were summoned to the scene by Ray Thrylor and Ralph Sandquist, Chautauque County coordinators who had been alerted to phone the fire units.
In all, between 75 and 80 volunteer firemen using 11 pieces of equipment from nine companies participated in the mutual aid call despite a steady

Jamestown Crash Has Six Injured

JAMESTOWN — Six persons were taken to WCA Hospital yesterday afternoon after a headon collision on Jones and Gifford avenue near Art Metals, Inc.
Two persons were charged by police as a result of the accident.
Traffic officer George Thompson said an eastbound auto being driven by Samuel Caruso, 15, of 32 Broadhead ave., smashed headon into a car being driven by Harland Luce, of 9 Ann ave., Falconer.
Caruso was driving a car owned by Nicholas Antonuccio of RD 1, Ridgway, Pa., who was a passenger in the car.
Police said Caruso was driving along Jones and Gifford avenue when he pulled abreast of another car being operated by Carl Calmeri, 17, of 18 Parkridge st. The two cars were traveling side-by-side down Jones and Gifford at speeds from 45 to 50 miles per hour when the Caruso car hit the Luce auto.
Admitted to WCA Hospital with face cuts was Harland Luce. His wife, Florence, suffered a broken ankle, a broken leg, several broken ribs and a leg laceration. Their daughter Barbara, 6, was treated for head lacerations and released.
Caruso was admitted with a right leg injury, face cuts, and a broken nose. His passenger, Linda Carabine, 19, of Burndale, Pa., was admitted with severe face cuts. Antonuccio did not require treatment.
Antonuccio was charged with allowing an unlicensed operator to drive his car. Officer Thompson issued a summons to Calmeri for speeding. No charges were placed against the Caruso youth because of his age.

An area fire department truck apparently has dropped its hose a long distance from the fire, but actually their coiled hose was one of several joined with other department booster lines to pump water from a pond to Eisenhower High School. Nine fire departments participated in a mutual aid call yesterday morning to determine a course of action should the school have a blaze. (Photo by Schumann)

Sea-Dogs Roll Over, Die in Britannia

LONDON (AP) — Britannia rules the waves? Well, a survey of 2,000 Britons found yesterday that Britain may be turning into a nation of landlubbers.
The study, conducted by an organization called "Mass Observation," recorded:
Sixty-one per cent of those interviewed haven't been to sea or on any water at all in the past year.
Almost half — 47 per cent — said they didn't even like the sea.
Only 15 per cent have been in a rowboat, 12 per cent in a cross-channel ferry, 11 per cent on motor cruisers and 10 per cent on outboard motor craft.

A fairly obvious fact emerged: Those interested in the water and boats are mostly men and mostly from the middle classes, who presumably can afford it.
There's still hope for the tradition of the sea-loving Briton.

A dozen English Channel swimmers conducted their annual weekend meeting at Dover on the Kentish coast. Their association regards itself as the watchdog of channel swims. They plunged into the icy water yesterday morning, frisked around and swam back to shore.

Ned Barnie, 70, a Scot from Portobello, who has negotiated the channel swim three times, had his dip along with the others and said bravely: "Just what the doctor ordered."

The temperature: 48 degrees; the water, five degrees colder.

WHO IS NUMBER 4?

Don't Fail To Vote May 16 !

On May 21, 1963, a North Warren man postponed his departure for a trip to The Hague in Holland, in order to cast his ballot at the primary election.

George W. Cunningham Sr. was that citizen who thought enough of his voting privilege and of his right to pick his candidate, to wait two days before he and his wife took off to visit their daughter.

By noon on election day four years ago, however, despite near-perfect weather, only about 15 per cent of the electorate had turned out.

Four years ago there were seven Republican candidates for the office of county commissioner and five Democrat hopefuls. On May 16 this year (primary election day) the number of Republicans seeking

Rushing the Season

We used to rush the season. There was still a raw wind out of the east and the clouds were low and gray and swift. "Summer's here," we'd say and we badgered our parents to let us go to Highlands, New Jersey, for a weekend. They always said no, nothing doing, and asked us if we were crazy. Then they said: "Aw, go ahead." And we went.

There were four of us, John Dundas was the oldest, he was 16. He was tall and slender and had a new green-plaid suit. He smoked cigarettes in front of everybody. In high school, he formed his own fraternity, called the Pirates, and they put on plays at the Bergen Lyceum. When he spoke, it was like listening to an actor in a play. We called him "Chief." He wasn't chief of anything, especially when an argument started about whose turn it was to do the dishes and make the beds. Then there was Fred Grimsey, with black curly hair and creamy skin. His father was a diamond-cutter and a horse player, which is an exciting combination.

Fred was 14, big for his age, a born gigler. To his way of thinking, everything was funny. Bill Drummond was the third, just about as handsome as a 15-year-old can be. He had black hair in deep natural waves, a face carved solemnly by Michelangelo, and intelligence. He lived at 139 Wilkinson Ave., and he was the father in his house. The real one had died. Molly, who was stout and pleasant, turned to her son for decisions.

I was the fourth, a chunky Irish kid with straight jet hair, blue eyes and a chip on his shoulder. My father was a cop. I was 15, and the only thing I could do well was daydream. I dreamed of big ships and far away places; I dreamed of places where there was no school; I dreamed of a blonde girl named Evelyn Wilkins.

Fred had bought an old Pierce Arrow for $30. He wasn't old enough to drive, so he faked it. Even his father, the diamond-cutter, didn't know about it. The radiator developed a leak and the old open buggy hissed down the street like a water-sprinkler. We had $3 apiece for the weekend, and Bill suggested that a good way to fix a leak was to put oats in the radiator. It fixed the leak, but, in a week, the radiator was growing blue flowers.

We drove down to the Jersey Shore in state. With the pedal on the floor, the crate did about 30, so the trip took two hours. We moved sedately up the hills beyond Atlantic Highlands and down into Water Witch like millionaire kids. On Miller Street, we stopped at a store and bought four loaves of bread and a dozen eggs as a concession to our parents.

Fred kept moaning that we would need gas, so we held out enough for five gallons. The rest went for candy and a package of Piedmonts for Chief. Bill's mother had a bungalow on Miller Street, 40 feet from the edge of the Shrewsbury, and the Pierce Arrow stood in front of this tired clapboard junkheap like a rich relative.

Nobody was at the shore, except the clam diggers. It was quiet and we kept warm by

JOSEPH ALSOP

Republican Death Wish?

WASHINGTON — Leaving his wife Lurleen to tend the shop in the state capital, Alabama's former governor, George Wallace, has been tempestuously barnstorming through several Northern states. From start to finish, the Wallace speaking trip has mainly been treated as an eccentric political comedy-act. In fact, it is a major portent.

There are two points to note about George Wallace, the most successful racist politician in a great many years. In the first place, pressure from big money has applied successfully to keep him out of the 1964 Presidential race; and this aided Barry Goldwater.

But the noises Wallace is now making, the shape his campaign is now taking, the things he now says in private to his friends, indeed the very character of the man himself all combine to suggest very strongly that he will be a third party candidate this time, come hell or high water.

Former Vice-President Richard M. Nixon can and no doubt will organize formidable money-pressure on Wallace, but this time it will almost certainly fail to produce the result it produced in 1964.

Point two concerning Wallace is, therefore, of transcendent importance. For if Wallace is a candidate in 1968, this will automatically doom the so-called Southern Strategy that Goldwater invented for his party.

The Southern Strategy is, in reality, a concealed racist strategy, for it is based on giving up for lost the Northern Negro votes and seeking racist electoral votes in the South.

Although Nixon will never admit it—although he will be infinitely more mealy-mouthed about it than his chief current sponsor—this is now the proposed winning strategy of the former Vice-President, of whom Goldwater has said "He's my man."

The Wallace candidacy's brutal effect on the Nixon candidacy has lately been documented by the inquiring Dr. George Gallup. In a two-man race, Gallup shows President Johnson and former Vice-President Nixon running neck and neck, with 48 per cent of the vote apiece. But Gallup also shows that for every two votes taken from Mr. Johnson, Wallace would take 12 from Nixon, mainly in the South.

With Wallace in the race, according to Gallup, Mr. Johnson would win handily with 46 per cent of the total vote, while Nixon would be drastically reduced to 36 per cent. Wallace would take most of the Southern states, and the election would be decided above the Mason-Dixon line where, once again, Mr. Johnson would have the advantage.

The Gallup Poll is in turn confirmed by the Louis Harris Poll. For even though the Harris Poll shows Mr. Johnson somewhat more ahead of Nixon in a two-way race, its really important showing is the fatal damage that would be done to Nixon by Wallace's candidacy.

Outside the South, moreover, Harris shows Wallace drawing Republican and Democratic votes in almost exactly equal numbers, thus torpedoing the theory that Wallace would aid Nixon in the North while hurting him in the South.

The pollsters, at the moment, also show a Wallace candidacy giving Mr. Johnson the victory over a Republican moderate such as Gov. George Romney. Yet Wallace's threat to a Republican moderate, who hopes to win in the North, is obviously quite different from his threat to a Republican right-wing candidate, like Nixon, who hopes to gain his winning margin in the South.

The point is, very simply, that Wallace's hold on the Southern votes is almost certainly unshakable. Whereas a Republican moderate like Romney would obviously have a vastly better chance than Nixon would have to beat Mr. Johnson in the great industrial states above the Mason-Dixon line.

As of now, in fact, with Wallace and a Republican moderate in the race against Mr. Johnson, the betting for or against the President would be even money either way. But with Wallace and Nixon in the race against Mr. Johnson, the betting would now favor the President by at least 5-to-3. Such being the odds, what are the Republicans going to do about it?

The answer is that the GOP is more likely to yield to its familiar death wish. The last thing most Republicans think about is finding a candidate who will perhaps please the voters. The first thing they think about is finding a candidate who will give their beloved ideology a jolly run in the yard. Thus, in convention delegates nailed down, Nixon is already far ahead, with more than 400.

Maybe some of these delegates will come loose again when and if Nixon is beaten in the primaries by moderate competitors, as he probably will be. Maybe, just maybe, the Republican Party will become excited by its best chance to win the Presidency since Dwight Eisenhower's golden, empty days. But it is never wise to bet on this degree of Republican rationality.

Local Tax Load

HARRISBURG — Chances are excellent there's hardly a taxpayer in Pennsylvania who wouldn't relish the thought of having his local tax load reduced.

Chances are equally excellent no such event will take place; that the local tax load will increase instead.

Nevertheless the idea of reducing local taxes is always a titillating one—especially for politicians, public office seekers, straining-at-the-leash bureaucrats, and what-not.

However, to reduce or hold the tax-line at one source obviously requires upping it at another—to make up for the deficiency.

All this has turned into an excellent round-robin of passing-the-buck (no pun intended), as for example, the local political subdivision (borough, township, city, county) saying: if we are to reduce or keep down our local tax load we've got to have more from the state.

The state in turn, sensing the ticklishness of the plaint (or complaint) avers that if this is the case then the state must receive more from the federal government—which leaves poor old Washington fiddling in left field with no place to turn or pass on the plea.

This sort of thing has transpired over the years, it's nothing new and it never seems to get anywhere.

Recent Pennsylvania chief executives have almost religiously dogged Congress and the various sundry administrations in office at the time for a greater share of tax returns to Pennsylvania from the federal government.

The contention (justifiably) has been that Pennsylvania pays in far greater than it receives in return. Of course the whole idea of this "potpourri system" has been that more financially well-off states help subsidize the less fortunate states—with the same theory working on the state level in relation to the poorer political subdivisions within the state.

However, to get at the meat of the thing, Governor Shafer and his legislative colleagues have come up with a resolution stating that the Legislature "respectfully petitions the Congress of the United States to call a convention for the purpose of proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States . . . which will require the United States to return annually to each of the several states a portion of its tax revenues, and requiring that such revenues be equitably apportioned among the several states."

The resolution passed the House of Representatives April 18. It has yet to be acted upon by the Senate.

In the latter part of March this column, in discussing the Shafer proposal, noted at the time: "Governor Shafer is interested in seeing that Pennsylvania receives a more favorable and equitable share—which brings up the interesting point of shouldn't the same problem in Pennsylvania's own back yard be considered with equal zest (giving) equal consideration to the comparable plight of local political subdivisions in the state versus Pennsylvania state government and its tax revenue programs?"

Since then two resolutions along this line have been introduced in the House—one last week by Bucks County Rep. Milton Berkes, who said at the time: "It stands to reason that if tax sharing can work on a federal-state level, it might work just as well on a state-local level."

That's a bit difficult to argue against—in this case the shoe is on the other foot!

Birchers Draw Bead on Church

WASHINGTON—The John Birch Society is playing it close to the chest, but its executives have been working on a plan to recall a liberal Western Senator, Frank Church of Idaho.

The idea is to make an example of one liberal Democrat and by this technique scare other Senators into adopting a right-wing voting course. Idaho has experienced a swing to right-wingism in the last year or so, and Church, sometimes called the young Bora of the West, has been fearless in urging a non-isolationist foreign policy.

Among other things, he voted for ratification of the Soviet-American Consular Treaty which the John Birch Society bitterly opposed. Such Republican leaders as Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois also voted for confirmation.

Recently there have turned up in Idaho mysterious petitions printed not in Idaho but in San Rafael, Calif., by the Translucent Forms Company.

Simultaneously the first gun in the drive against Church was fired April 5 by "The Eagle," a right-wing paper published in Yakima, Wash. Birchites are now trying to get 10 per cent of the Idaho voters who cast their ballots in the last gubernatorial election to sign the recall petition. If so, they can force a special election regarding Church. It is one of the most significant political developments in the nation.

This column wishes to apologize to Robert N. C. Nix Jr., son of the Congressman by that name from Philadelphia. On March 27, 1967, we reported that young Nix received a salary of $20,000 as administrative assistant to his father but was seldom in his father's office in Washington.

We telephoned Rep. Nix's office repeatedly, to ask what young Nix did. We got no answer. The office was closed. One trouble with Negro Congressmen in Washington is that they don't work as hard as other Congressmen yet complain when they fail to get recognition.

We now find that we underestimated young Nix. Not only does he get $20,578.44 from the taxpayers, allegedly to help his father, but he also collected $900 last year from the taxpayers to rent an office in Philadelphia's Harlem, supposedly a branch office for his father. Yet the Congressman's official office is listed in the Philadelphia phone book at the Customs House, not at 2139 N. 22nd street, for which the government pays rent for Nix.

Young Nix is now running for judge of the Common Pleas Court of Philadelphia. And the records of the Municipal Court of Philadelphia, Women's Criminal Division, docket No. 4060 and No. 28775 of the December sessions, 1964, show that young Nix has had some court experience in the past.

This experience, however, involved nothing that would qualify him to be a judge but, rather, a paternity case for an illegitimate child. The woman who bore the child testified Dec. 23, 1964, before Judge Theodore Spaulding, that Robert Nix Jr. was the father of a child born to her on December 10, 1962, and stated that she had relations with young Nix but "I don't remember where; it was in so many places."

Rep. Nix had contributed to the child's support and, later, when a total of $3,500 was paid, the mother of the child dropped the charges. Young Nix pleaded not guilty, and Judge Michael J. O'Donnell then ruled "according to the circumstances, I will enter a verdict of not guilty."

Young Nix is running for a Philadelphia judgeship this month, has sworn that he was never convicted of any crime. Technically he is correct.

Our apologies to Mr. Nix for understating his record.

It was President Johnson personally who concluded the long, difficult negotiations over withdrawing some American troops from West Germany.

He persuaded Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger to accept the withdrawal of 35,000 troops, but in return, he agreed to a less drastic reduction of our fighter bombers stationed in Germany. As a result, a final agreement was reached a few days after Johnson returned home from the Adenauer funeral.

The President and Chancellor Kiesinger also reached a better understanding on the treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons. The American concessions, however, may make the treaty more difficult to sell to the Soviet Union.

Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, was attending the last meeting of the Council of Europe, an organization which seeks to promote unity among the peoples of Western Europe. The council held a special session to observe the 20th anniversary of the Marshall Plan, which at the depths of the post-war depression helped to rebuild the devastated economies of France, England, Belgium, the Netherlands and other allies. Significantly, no French official spoke out at the council session. But Rep. Hays reports that he jumped the 90-year-old dean of the French National Assembly, Martus Moutet. "Maybe the De Gaulists don't want to mention the Marshall Plan," said Deputy Moutet, "but I am going to mention it."

"France owes a great debt of gratitude to the United States and we will never forget it. If the French government wants to remain silent, I will not. My voice will speak out for the people of France. We will always remember the Marshall Plan."

JAMES RESTON

Richard Nixon's Campaign

(c) N. Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON—According to the Associated Press, Richard Milhous Nixon was in Lima, Peru, last weekend. Last month he was in Asia—or was it Europe?—and his schedule for the rest of this year reads like a Pan American timetable. So what is he trying to prove? He is trying to prove the new theories of American politics: (A) That motion is progress; (B) that the road to the White House runs through all the other capitals of the world; and (C) that distance lends enchantment.

Moreover—and it is quite an achievement—he is not only trying to prove these things; but he is actually proving that they work. Right now, the pros in Washington tend to agree that he will get the Republican presidential nomination primarily because the competition is not very stiff, and also because he not only knows all the Republican county chairmen of the United States, but all the prime ministers of the world as well.

In personal terms, the Nixon story of the last few years is remarkable. Whatever else he does, he endures. The fact that anybody is even talking about him for the presidency now is not only a sad commentary on the state of the Republican party, but a tribute to his persistence. He has defied every rule in the political book. He not only lost the presidency in 1960 and the governorship of California in 1962, but he lost his political base as well. He moved to New York where he was supposed to be shut in by a successful Republican governor and attractive New York City mayor. Yet he has not only survived these political and geographical difficulties, but has made steady progress toward the presidential nomination, without an organization, without much money, and without making a single speech anybody can remember.

As an exercise in political tactics and personal perseverance, this is a triumph, but what does it mean? There is absolutely no evidence that travel has given him any new or deeper visions of America's problems in the world. He is saying, almost in the same words, what he said about Vietnam when he was Vice President: That is to say that power, military power, is the answer. This is the straight cold war dialogue. We are good, he says, and the Communists are bad. We must oppose them now or fight a world war with them later on. If we have our troubles in Vietnam, it is not that we have used too much military power, but that we have used too little.

It is hard to believe he still feels, after all his troubles, that the world of today fits the same arguments he was making five years ago. Europe and Asia are dramatically different. The Communist world is much more divided. The world is confused and rebellious. The problems of population and food, of De Gaulle and Europe, of Britain and the Common Market, of Latin America and Washington—all have changed.

Meanwhile, at home, the problems of the races and the cities and the parties are much more complicated and serious than they were when Nixon ran for the presidency against John F. Kennedy, but the former vice president has said nothing new about any of these things.

It is very odd. The theory of being out of office, enjoying the prosperity and leisure of modern big city legal practice, is that you have time to think about the old problems in a different way and put new policies before the people, but this he has not done.

He has dealt with the tactics but not the substance of the country's political problems. He is going abroad. He is getting headlines that show he has been in more foreign capitals than George Romney or Lyndon Johnson, but few candidates have ever seen so many new things or had so little new to say about them.

Nixon's rise toward the top of the Republican presidential candidates' list indicates that his strategy is working, but fairly soon now he is going to have to speak out seriously on what all this travel means.

He has made a brilliant comeback, and deserves credit for it. He is now obviously back in the center of the Republican presidential arena, but to date he has said nothing new about Vietnam policy or trade policy or monetary policy and he has not even had time to deal with the problems of the cities or the races at home.

SYLVIA PORTER

Buying Beef In Bulk

How much money could you save if instead of buying individual steaks in the supermarket at today's going prices, you bought an entire side of beef and stored it in your own home freezer or at a local freezer locker?

Today, wholesale meat companies the nation over are offering beef in quantity to consumers at rock bottom prices. The vast majority of these companies are entirely ethical; a small number are not. But ethical or not, it is vitally important to you, the food shopper to know how to buy meat in bulk—particularly since more than one in four American households today owns a home freezer and bulk buying is now big business.

The question becomes even more pertinent in view of the prospect for a new round of price boosts for beef in the months ahead. The American National Cattlemen's Association in Denver has just launched a nationwide campaign to cut back beef supplies and thus force up prices paid to cattlemen. If the campaign succeeds it could lead to retail beef prices of as much as 15 per cent or more later this year.

Here, then, are basic guidelines for you to save on bulk meat buying: To begin with, there is little doubt that buying a whole side of beef from a reputable wholesaler while beef prices are relatively low, as they are right now, will save you money. The savings are estimated at between 3 and 15 per cent, over and above the savings you get by buying beef while prices are low.

But a first vitally important point is that the advertised per-pound wholesale beef price may be for the gross carcass weight. To give you an idea of how a whole beef shrinks with processing, a carcass weighing 590 pounds will be reduced to 465 pounds of eating meat after cutting, trimming and boning.

Moreover, the wholesaler almost surely will add charges for processing, packaging and perhaps quick-freezing the meat. To arrive at the net cost per pound to you—and thus any savings over regular retail prices—you must figure the cost on the basis of the net amount of edible meat and count in processing costs. A second point is that, out of a whole, a side or a quarter of beef, more than half will become hamburger, stew meat and chuck roast. In the case of the above beef which dresses out at 465 pounds, 110 pounds will be hamburger; another 45 pounds will be stew meat and miscellaneous cuts; and another 105 pounds will be chuck roasts. Only 75 pounds will be porterhouse, T-bone, club and sirloin steaks and only 45 pounds will be in rib roasts.

Before buying a whole beef, therefore, you must decide whether your family will consume these amounts of each cut within the recommended maximum freezer storage time (8-12 months for steaks and roasts, 2-3 months for hamburger and stew meat).

A third consideration in bulk meat buying is that unless the meat bears the official shield-shaped grading stamp of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, you have only the reputation of the wholesaler on which to rely for the quality of the meat. Freezer beef advertised at astonishingly low prices could be only a come-on. When you go to buy, the dealer may downgrade the bargain meat and try to switch you to a much higher priced chunk which is no bargain at all.

Advertised supermarket meat specials frequently produce savings as great as those offered by wholesalers, with the added advantage that you buy only the meat cuts you actually prefer. Many supermarkets also periodically offer special big "freezer packs" of steaks or other meat cuts.

Thus, if you have any doubts about the reputation of the meat wholesaler offering bargain-priced bulk beef, or about the quality of the meat, or about the economics you'll actually achieve, your best bet is: Stick to supermarket specials.

The television industry in Warren periodically rattles the windows of community composure with some pronouncement or another. One of the main reasons is that TV is a major influence in our lives, whether we like it or not—or even believe it.

The latest is the plan of the local cable TV company to recall its $125 certificates for $57. The upshot of that whole deal will be that, instead of paying $3.95 per month, the one-time certificate holders will pay the same as everyone else—$5.95. And they're screaming.

And tonight, borough council will hear their voice of protest. There are petitions—my wife signed one right in the middle of her Friday floor-waxing—to be presented, complete with some sort of protest march.

I'm not about to tell the cable television industry how to run their business. I get enough of that in the newspaper field.

But I can't help making an observation about the whole thing. Television is, as I said, a major influence in our lives. We'll complain about it faster, and in more numbers, than we will about wiretapping, a six per cent surtax, the possibility of a state income tax, the flooding of the Grand Canyon, or the sad shape of the Russell High School (due to come up, by the way, on tonight's school board agenda).

It just goes to say that people are the strangest creatures ever to inhabit this old world of ours. And probably the most interesting.

A TEEN-AGER'S FIRST CAR

by Henry Gregor Felsen

Eleventh of a Series

TITLE IS WHAT YOU'RE ENTITLED TO

Although state laws differ, most states have two definite documents relating to your car.

One is the registration, the other is the title. Not knowing the difference between these two, when they are separate documents, can lead to the kind of grief I described earlier: the boy who found, when he missed a car payment, that the car had never been his.

In Iowa, the certificate of registration is what you receive and must display in your car to prove that you have properly licensed the car.

The numbers on it must match the numbers on your plates, for instance—a good protection against having your plates stolen and used by someone else.

The registration certificate also describes the car as to year, model, weight, factory number, license fee paid, etc. It also includes your name as the person responsible for the car, the one who gets the ticket for overtime parking or speeding.

Aside from identifying the car and identifying you as the person who paid for the license and is responsible for it, there is another understanding involved. Whether you know it or not, your responsibility is that the car meets all the legal requirements for licensing.

Most states have numerous laws relating to the condition and equipment of cars in meeting certain legal standards of operation. These include such matters as lights, horn, windshield wipers, and rear-vision mirrors, all of which must function in order for the car to qualify for operation on a public highway.

But if you are going to play around with your car, and customize it, you had better find out in advance what all the rules and regulations are. Headlights cannot be below a certain height from the ground. Many powerful custom headlights are illegal. So are some custom taillights which do not contain reflector glass.

It is your responsibility, as the one who has registered the car, to see that it conforms to all state laws, even if you are not the legal owner. Ownership is involved with another document, which is called the title.

In the conditional sales contract I have used as a sample, Section 1 says: "Title of said property shall not pass to the purchaser until said amount is fully paid in cash."

What do they mean by "pass"?

The way it should be, the moment you borrow the money and pay for the car, the title should be made out in your name. All the time the car is being financed, the lender (who may also be the dealer) has the right to keep that title in his physical possession, and he should.

As long as your title is in his possession, you can't sell the car, pocket the money, and skip off without paying back your loan. You can sell the car to anyone you want to, and the lender will hand over your title as soon as you have paid off your debt. You hand the title to the fellow who bought from you, and he owns the car.

If you default on a loan while title is in your name, the lender can proceed against you, repossess the car, and sell it. But when the car is sold, he can only keep what you owe him, plus costs of getting it. Anything left over belongs to you.

If the lender keeps the title in his name, and the car legally belongs to him while you are paying for it, he can prevent you from selling it or trading it off by not yielding his title. He can, in effect, make you trade only with him at his terms. Also, if you default, he can pick up his car, sell it for whatever he can get, and keep what you have paid in plus whatever the car brings. You have no car! You had no car.

This is why you should find out about the title laws in your state and do whatever necessary to make sure that, even though you are financing a car, it is your car while it is being financed.

Vote 'Yes' May 16

(Questions and answers on state Constitutional Reform Questions as prepared by the League of Women Voters.)

1. "Why should I be concerned with the State Constitution?" "Because the constitution has far-reaching effects on the life of every citizen. It has an important bearing on the conditions under which you may vote. It determines how fairly you are represented in the State Legislature, the form of local and county government under which you live, the quality of justice you may expect from the courts and the justices of the peace, the kind of taxes you pay, the caliber of your children's schools, the adequacy of highways, the quality of welfare services, and so forth.

"For many years the League of Women Voters of Pennsylvania has worked for improvement in state government. Often we found our efforts blocked by provisions in our State Constitution. We then began to realize how long, complicated and detailed it is in comparison to the Federal Constitution. The constitution of the United States contains broad statements of democratic principles, establishing a flexible and timeless framework of government."

2. "Give me some background on our present State Constitution."

"All four of Pennsylvania's constitutions were written by the convention method. Indeed, a Warren man served as a delegate to write our present document back in 1874. He was the father of the late Annette Stone Flick and the late Warren Stone, attorney. This constitution was the product of a crisis in State government affairs. It was written in the post-Civil War years, when there was rapid economic growth and panics, defaulting on bonds, and general economic instability. Special legislation in the interest of powerful groups able to buy what they wanted occupied the major attention of the legislature of those years. Therefore, a large part of the Constitution of 1874 is devoted to detailed restrictions on the power of the legislature.

"Today, some of the Constitutional provisions are obsolete, some have been called meaningless by the courts, some have been ignored, some belong in the realm of statutory law."

Four Helicopters Crash, 32 Killed

SAIGON (AP) — Four U.S. helicopters crashed in scattered Communist-infested areas of South Vietnam this weekend, killing 12 Americans and 20 South Vietnamese soldiers. Twenty-four South Vietnamese troops and two Americans were injured.

It was not known whether the crashes, coming in a period of slackened war activity on all fronts, were caused by enemy ground fire or mechanical difficulties.

The worst crash involved a twin-rotor CH-47 Chinook that went down near Kontum City in the central highlands yesterday, resulting in the 44 South Vietnamese casualties. One U.S. military adviser was injured by the four-man U.S. crew escaped unhurt.

In the other three crashes Saturday, eight American soldiers were killed in a Chinook near Bong Song, 300 miles northeast of Saigon, and four died when Huey helicopters went down near An Khe, 250 miles north-east of Saigon, and at the U.S. Special Forces camp at Plei Djerj, 230 miles north of the capital. One American was injured.

With the scale of fighting diminished in the air and on the ground during the weekend, North Vietnam called on its people and armed forces to develop "the glorious tradition" of the defeat of the French at Dien Bien Phu. Sunday was the 13th anniversary of that Viet Minh victory that brought independence to Vietnam and its eventual division of North and South.

The Viet Cong staged two hit-run attacks in South Vietnam. In one they blew up a fuel pipeline leading to the airfield at Phan Rang, 170 miles northeast of Saigon, before dawn Saturday, but the line was back in operation by dusk.

In the other attack, the guerrillas ambushed a U.S. Army truck on the Saigon-Bien Hoa highway and captured two American soldiers. The truck was halted by a Claymore mine, which killed two South Vietnamese children and seven adults. The Viet Cong then swarmed over the truck and carried off the Americans.

Svetlana Upsetting Russian Propaganda

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW MOSCOW (AP) — Kremlin leaders are reported seething with anger at the bomb Svetlana Alliluyeva has planted under their celebrations of half a century of communism.

One publicity campaign is already mounting in Moscow for the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution on Nov. 7. It makes great claims for the moral correctness and material success of communism.

Mrs. Alliluyeva, daughter of the late Soviet dictator Joseph V. Stalin, has denied the former and implied that the latter is irrelevant to a judgment of communism. Her own judgment is harsh.

Informed sources in Moscow say her recent statements in the United States have greatly angered her father's successors. She has said they are heirs to guilt as well as greatness.

Some sources say an article is being prepared for the Soviet press which will be an indirect answer to Mrs. Alliluyeva.

In the opinion of some Communists, virtually every well-educated person in Moscow knows of Mrs. Alliluyeva's statements though they have not been published here.

The editor of the government paper Izvestia, Elev Tolkunov, wrote in January that Russians get information "not only from our sources. There exist all sorts of radio stations of the bourgeois West, some of which impudently and coarsely, others more subtly and cunningly, give their own false interpretation of events."

Three months later, when she arrived in New York, Mrs. Alliluyeva said: "In recent years, we in Russia have begun to think, to discuss, to argue, and we are not so much automatically devoted anymore to the ideas which we were taught."

The challenge to "the ideas which we were taught" likely will become sharper to the Soviet leaders because of a coincidence in timing.

Mrs. Alliluyeva's book is to be published in the United States in October. That means renewed worldwide publicity for her views will come just before the crescendo of publicity from Moscow for the opposing view that communism is a great and glorious thing.

If Soviet leaders look for scapegoats, other than Mrs. Alliluyeva and her American hosts, one could turn out to be Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Informed sources say he personally made the decision to let her go to India with the ashes of the man she considered her husband. That decision, plus some bungling in the Soviet Embassy in New Delhi, allowed Mrs. Alliluyeva to defect.

Vietnamese Contraband Costs High

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office—GAO—suggests that the amount of goods stolen or otherwise diverted in the U.S.-financed import program for Vietnam may be more than the Agency for International Development—AID—thinks. But the GAO concedes there's no way to be sure. AID submitted a report to President Johnson last Jan. 19 on management of the commodity programs in Vietnam. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee asked the GAO to evaluate that report.

Committee Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., released the AID and April 27 GAO report last night.

In the GAO report, Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats says AID's study "accurately enumerates what we consider to be a series of well-conceived actions, initiated during the last half of 1966, to improve program management."

Previous studies by GAO and others indicated considerable misuse of imported goods last year. The man in charge, assistant AID administrator Rutherford M. Posts, has told Congress the abuses were deplorable but unavoidable due to lack of manpower to handle the burgeoning program. Posts has been nominated for promotion to deputy AID administrator. His nomination is pending in the Senate where Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., opposes it because of Posts' record in the Vietnam aid program. Staats says AID "estimated that in recent months no more than 5 to 6 per cent of all United States economic assistance commodities delivered to Vietnam had been stolen or otherwise diverted."

"In view of the lack of reliable accountability data, we believe that it would be most difficult to identify commodity losses with any reasonable degree of precision."

AND KELSO'S SWIMMING HOLE

City-Slickers Buy School

KELSO, California (AP) — In this little Mojave Desert town, where the railroad is almost everything, "we're facing our worst crisis since steam went out," says the lady postmaster.

Lena Finnel then added: "This place has been in an uproar ever since those two women drove into town."

Kelso, population 65, is a railroad town with every male adult employed by the Union Pacific. It's located on the main line between Los Angeles and Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Finnel referred to Kelso's newest property owners, Tonya McMahon and her mother, Hazel Klinker, 74, both of San Juan Capistrano, Calif.

"The women claim they own our schoolhouse. They say the teachers and pupils are trespassing on their property. They filled in the village swimming hole—the only recreational facility we had. No telling what they'll do next," Mrs. Finnel said Sunday.

The mother and daughter bid successfully on 65 acres in Kelso recently at a tax delinquent property sale in the San Bernardino County Courthouse.

Mrs. Klinker said, "We bid on the 65 acres, figuring we'd built a resort."

She and her daughter checked maps of Kelso and decided they needed an access to a road and then bought seven additional acres fronting the Kelso-Cima road.

Driving out to Kelso, the mother and daughter found the one-room, 50-year-old Kelso Elementary School on the one piece of property that fronted the road.

Their attorney, Garfield McDaniel of Etna, researched the deed and says the school district never had title to the land.

But the San Bernardino County deputy counsel, Robert R. Walker, says the two women and their attorney are wrong.

He says "By virtue of being there for 50 years, the school district has legal title to the school and the land on which it stands, by reason of adverse possession laws."

"If there had been any dispute about the location of the school, it should have occurred 50 years ago."

As for filling in the swimming hole, the two women said, "The pool was built by the community on land not owned by the community. If someone was hurt or drowned we, the owners of the land, would be liable."

McDaniel says he will file suit against the school district to vacate the schoolhouse.

"We used to have 150 railroad workers here," says the postmaster. "Now we're just a little place. But we still need the school."

COMMISSION URGES LENIENCY

Revamp Sex Crimes Code?

By STEPHEN M. AUG

WASHINGTON (AP) — The President's crime commission recommended last night removal from the criminal-law area of many sexual practices now listed as crimes.

This is part of the group's suggested wholesale revision of laws on drunkenness, prostitution, abortion, gambling, narcotics and sex acts.

It says enforcement of some of these laws is costly in money and manpower, is demoralizing for the police, needlessly clogs court calendars and has proven ineffective.

The commission expresses belief that many of these matters are social ills and should be treated outside the criminal-law system.

It says, "Criminal prohibitions against some types of sexual behavior reflect an idealized moral code, not what a substantial percentage of the population, judged by their conduct, regard as beyond the margin of tolerability for the average fallible citizen." It adds most such laws are largely unenforced.

In the report on the courts, the commission recommends also:

—Elimination of popular election of state and local judges as the sole means of selection, suggesting at least a preliminary selection of candidates by a nonpartisan nominating panel before election.

—Adoption of a model timetable to speed up court action on criminal cases. It says delays average eight to 12 months between arrest and trial in felonies, and 10 to 18 months between imposition of a sentence and disposition of an appeal. The commission's timetable would dispose of all cases within four months and appeals in another five.

—Bail reforms that would permit judges to set conditions of release based on the risks presented by each defendant.

—Revision of vagrancy and disorderly conduct laws which police often use broadly to detain, question and search persons suspected of other crimes. The commission says, "Application of these laws often tends to discriminate against the poor and subcultural groups. It is unjust to structure law enforcement in such a way that poverty itself becomes a crime."

There also are a number of recommendations aimed at helping the poor obtain counsel, and at upgrading the quality of the lawyers they do obtain. Many of these are summed up in the statement of Patricia M. Wald, one of the commission consultants, who notes that, "The poor are arrested more often, convicted more frequently, sentenced more harshly, rehabilitated less successfully than the rest of society."

She writes that the burdens of poverty can be eased "by assuring the poor those basic procedural rights which our society ostensibly grants all citizens; the right to be represented by competent counsel early enough in the process to preserve other rights; the right to prepare an adequate defense; the right to be free until convicted, the right not to be jailed solely because of lack of money to remit a fine or make restitution; the right to parole, the right to a clean start after prison."

The commission devotes one chapter to laws which it said "have complicated the duties of police, prosecutor and court and have hindered the attainment of a rational and just penal system."

It calls for the abandonment of the "common legislative premise that the criminal law is a sure panacea for all social ills."

These are the laws dealing with a mass of social ills—drunkenness, narcotics, gambling, irregular sexual behavior, bad-check writing, non-support of children.

Some of the findings include:

—DRUNKENNESS: Treated almost universally as a criminal offense, drunkenness accounted for about a third of all 4,955,047 arrests reported in this country in 1965, and thus represents "a substantial burden upon law enforcement resources."

The commission finds the "return for these costs is disappointing" since the public drunk usually is the homeless alcoholic who is a compulsive repeater. It urges taking drunkenness out of the criminal-law process and treating it "for what it really is, a social problem of alcoholism and poverty."

—SEXUAL BEHAVIOR: The commission says "basic social interests demand the use of the strongest sanctions" against rape, child molestation, commercialized vice "and to protect the institutions of marriage and family."

But, it continues, when these interests are not at stake, as in the case of most misbehavior between consenting adults, the situation is less clear.

Such cases would include fornication, adultery, sodomy and homosexuality.

"Available information indicates that laws against fornication, adultery and heterosexual deviancy are generally unenforced," it says.

—ABORTION: The commission estimates that as many as one million abortions are performed each year in this country, but only 8,000 to 10,000 are legal and conducted in hospital settings.

It recommends as one possible approach, that abortions be legalized in cases in which the mother's mental or physical health may be damaged, the child might be born with serious physical or mental defects, or in cases in which the pregnancy resulted from rape, incest "or other felonious intercourse."

—NARCOTICS-DRUGS: Recommends severe punishment for those who illegally sell narcotics and dangerous drugs, and appropriate provisions for treatment of addicts.

WEEK IN FINANCE

New Economic Expansion Seen Around Corner

By THOMAS E. MULLANEY
N. Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK—Increased speculative activity in Wall Street last week propelled the stock averages still higher. For the first time in almost 11 months the Dow-Jones industrials closed above the 900 mark, and several other indexes reached new highs.

Analysts attribute the market's buoyant behavior to growing investor belief that a new economic expansion is just around the corner. That new bullish attitude started three weeks ago. Elsewhere however a more sober viewpoint prevails, though it is not unanimous.

The May letter of the First National City Bank took a cautious stance on the state of the economy, noting that despite a "large dosage of fiscal stimulants," the economy was not likely "to take off as rapidly as some now believe."

But such cautionary assessments had no significant impact on the stock market last week. Neither did President Johnson's statement that the government's revenue needs still required the 5 per cent surtax he proposed last January.

There was no reaction either to the speech delivered by Gardner Ackley, the Administration's chief economic adviser, in which he warned of renewed price pressures in the economy and said that steps to revive and strengthen the dormant wage-price guidelines "must and will be taken soon."

The stock market was instead taking encouragement from the thought that the economy was bound to benefit substantially from the resumption of heavier spending by government and consumers, a comeback in the housing market and an orderly adjustment of excessively high business inventories during the first half of the year.

Of these factors, the most compelling at the moment are indications of a big upturn in spending.

Consumers had been counted upon to lead the economy out of its winter slowdown—and apparently they are. Their expenditures rose $8 billion in the first quarter, twice the gain of the final three months in 1966. And store sales figures indicate they kept up the buying pace in April.

Meanwhile the leveling of defense expenditures that had been envisioned in the federal budget apparently is not occurring. Escalation of the war effort in Vietnam would push it even higher. Government spending rose more than $7 billion in the first quarter.

If the economy picks up in the second half, as the Administration (among others) so confidently predicts, demand for long-term capital is certain to increase, and that means further upward pressure on interest rates.

Over the last month there was an upward swing in interest rates, but it seemed to have ended last week, with long-term rates apparently having reached a level high enough to get investors interested in the bond market again.

Some of the new bond issues offered publicly last week carried the highest yields since the Federal Reserve Board voted early last winter to move toward greater credit easing. Yields were up sharply from the year's lows of early February.

On Wednesday, the Potomac Electric Power Company sold $35 million of bonds at a yield of 5.75 per cent, the highest for an issue with double-A credit standing since the Florida Power and Light Company sold one at 5.9 per cent last Dec. 2.

At the peak of bond market rates last summer, the Southern California Edison Company sold a similarly rated issue at a 6.05 per cent return. The low this year was 5.11 per cent on a Virginia Electric and Power Company bond issue sold Feb. 8.

Thus, corporate interest rates are closer to the heights that caused such consternation last year than they are to the lows of February. In fact, they have retraced about two-thirds of their drop from those 45-year peaks.

Investor interest definitely showed signs of increasing last week, and investment bankers, who were just beginning to mention their apprehension, started to breathe easier.

The Potomac Electric bonds sold out the first day they were offered and large tax-exempt bonds offered during the week were snapped up for the first time in weeks.

Despite the renewed interest in bonds, there seemed little reason to think interest rates would be pushed back downward again. The volume of new issues coming along in the next several weeks is too large.

Offerings of taxable bonds, including $900 million of federal national mortgage association participation certificates expected next month, has been estimated to total $3 billion for May and June.

Other significant developments last week:

—The Commerce Department report that new factory orders rose 0.5 per cent in March after a 0.3 per cent gain in February.

—A decline of 3/4 cent of 1 cent a pound in zinc prices and reductions of 7.5 per cent on copper pipe and tubing.

—Further employee layoffs by some television manufacturers as sales continue to lag.

—A slowdown in the auto-sales decline in April, with deliveries of new cars showing a dip of only 3 per cent from a year ago, in contrast to drops of 20 per cent in earlier months this year.

—The big gain ($145.6 million) in Britain's gold and dollar reserves last month; Britain's decision to file for membership in the Common Market, and her latest reduction in the bank rate to 5.5 per cent.

—The agreement by West Germany to refrain from converting its dollar holdings into gold as part of a program to ease the U.S. balance of payments problem.

The rise of $264 million in installment credit in March, against a jump of $649 million in the same month a year ago.

The First National City Bank's tabulation of corporate profits for the first quarter, showing aggregate earnings of $6.1 billion for 1,431 companies, down 7 per cent from the similar period in 1966.

The stock market picked up steam toward the weekend and closed with moderate gains. Rail issues were particularly strong on Friday, finally pushing the rail average to a new peak for the year.

It was again a decidedly higher week with 884 issues advancing and 576 declining. A total of 445 stocks reached new highs for the year and 25 hit new lows.

The Dow-Jones industrial index closed the week at 905.96 for a net gain of 8.91 points. The New York Times combined average rose 5.04 points to 537.37 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up 0.40 to 94.44.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange expanded by two million shares to a total of 54.7 million, the largest volume in two months.

The most active list of 20 stocks showed 19 with gains and only one issue—American Telephone—with a loss. Telephone declined 1 1/2 for the week to 57 1/2.

Sperry Rand was the week's busiest issue on turnover of 1,276,400 shares. This included a record single sale of 585,600 shares, believed to have been a block for a mutual fund, on Thursday. The block trade was at 30 3/4, but the stock closed on Friday at 33 3/4, its high for the week and a net gain of 1 1/4 over the week before.

Brunswick was the second most active issue on sales of 921,700 shares. It rose 3/4 to 13 3/4. Much of the recent activity has been attributed to reports that the Delaware Fund had purchased 200,000 shares in the March quarter. The company recently reported a gain in earnings.

American Motors placed third on the active list with a turnover of 724,600 shares. It advanced 3/4 for the week to 11 1/4. The company, which recently reported an increase in production of some models, also announced an extension of its credit agreement with a group of banks and the sale of its credit agency to Chrysler.

Lionel Corporation, on sales of 662,700 shares, placed fourth on the active list. It gained 1 1/4 to 7 1/4. Earnings of 17 cents a share were reported for the first quarter, against 3 cents a year ago.

OBSERVATIONS . . . by Bob Walsh

THE ISSUES

(This is a continuation of a review of my position on some of the current issues facing county commissioners. More detailed editorials have been written in preceding weeks.)

THE ELDERLY

Though much that can be done for the elder citizens is not within the power of the county officials, they can use their political influence to obtain legal changes. There should be an effort to minimize the charity case approach by helping them to be self-sustaining. Social security and similar benefits should be adequate, and if a sound basic income can be established, it should be adjusted with the consumer price index, thus protecting their pensions from inflation by making them flexible.

The elderly should be invited to have a voice in the planning and the administration of all services affecting them, such as the Rouse Home.

LAY ASSISTANCE

The County Commissioners are being spread too thin. I suggest a greater utilization of committee and commission assistance and the selection of people directly affected to serve on such groups.

PUBLIC WELFARE

The goal should be to minimize, if not eliminate, the need for charity. Obviously this never will be completely accomplished. But we can help people to help themselves, and we can provide a basic income that will lend self-respect to the young and to the elderly in such a way that exemptions, handouts, and pay-for-nothing programs will be almost negated.

The Office of Economic Opportunity probably is not the final answer to this problem. But it is a step. And the money it spends is ours. We should utilize it until improvements can be managed.

HOFFMAN HOME

Improvements planned for this home are commendable. I approve the suggestion that a committee might help advise the commissioners in the management. Wise handling of this home can completely eliminate the need for county tax money to support it.

ROUSE HOME

The addition to the hospital will be an improvement of which Warren county can be proud. The old section of the Home is its shame. Again I suggest a committee of lay people versed in related fields could be useful. Such a committee should include elderly representatives. This facility also can be developed to the point where county tax money will not be used.

One of the biggest sources of income we will have in the future will be our visitors. The commissioners should do everything within their power to make our county attractive to them. Such steps involve much of what I already have written.

In addition to the visitor, we revert to my original point made in Saturday's column. Manpower is our most vital resource. You can neither attract nor keep the best of manpower unless a diversity of recreational facilities is provided. Much that the commissioners do in the fields of transportation, highways, urban renewal, planning, zoning, land use, and many others, directly affect adequacy in this category.

Recreation is a major asset, both to gain dollars and to keep them. And also to protect the health of our residents.

TOMORROW'S COUNTY

The only way we can assure the continuance of county government for the bulk of our present services is through constitutional modernization. This is contrary to what is being claimed by some who oppose the convention.

It is a simple matter to get around county government through state requirements related to financial allocations. This might be described as government by appropriation and already is practiced.

We must streamline our county governments if they are to live. All services will be greatly improved through compactness and coordination.

Though present officials probably never will be greatly affected, eventually you may see a county board representing all areas. A county manager and his staff, directly responsible to the elected board, may take the place of the present commissioner office.

If we do not help effect this transition we may find ourselves a small cog in a regional system, which can be accomplished without constitutional amendments.

And remember—all amendments must be approved by you.

Neapolitans Pray For Blood of St. Januarius

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Tens of thousands of Neapolitans streamed into the huge Basilica of Santa Chiara in an almost endless procession Sunday to pray for the blood of St. Januarius to liquefy and save the city from unforeseen disaster.

The congealed blood of the city's patron saint, kept in a container in the basilica, is supposed to liquefy twice each year, on Sept. 19 and the first Saturday of May. But midnight Saturday passed without liquefaction and Neapolitans say it is the first time in more than two decades that this has happened.

They say tragedy will hit their city if the miracle fails to take place, that the blood failed to liquefy in 1527 and the city was ravaged by plague; in 1835 and the city was hit by cholera; in 1941, and allied warplanes bombed Naples.

Investors Exhibit Confidence After Good Earnings Reports

By DOUGLAS W. CRAY
(c) N. Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—Prices advanced last week in lively trading on the American Stock Exchange and the over-the-counter market.

Investors exhibited more confidence in the wake of better-than-expected first quarter earnings reports and the pickup in automobile sales.

The National Quotation Bureau's index of 35 industrial stocks on the over-the-counter market registered one of the best weekly gains of the year. Closing at 308.02, it was 13.36 above the previous Friday. On Jan. 1 the index stood at 229.01.

The American Stock Exchange's index moved ahead 38 cents last week to 18.62. This was more than double the increase of the week before. Volume for last week was 23,365,420 shares, compared with 21,166,175 traded in the week prior.

Dejura-Amsco, maker of business dictating and photographic equipment, climbed 2 points on the over-the-counter market. The company is expected to report a rise in first quarter profits and it is considering listing on the American Stock Exchange.

Yoo-Hoo Beverage Company, Inc., moved ahead 7/8 in active trading. Yoo-Hoo produces milk-based non-carbonated soft drinks. A sharp increase in profits to $2.23 a share for the year ended March 31 against $1.06 in the preceding year helped advance Miniature Precision 2 points.

The Ainsley Corporation gained 1/2 on news that its Canadian subsidiary had received a number of new orders. Ainsley produces micro-wave antennas. News that Doyle Dane Bernbach, the advertising agency, had won the $15 million account of General Telephone & Electronics sent the former company's stock ahead a point.

The Hoover Company lost 1/2 after reporting that its profits in the first quarter fell to 51 cents a share from 65 cents in the same quarter last year.

Gainers for the week on the over-the-counter market included: Automatic Sprinkler, up 8 1/4; Keuffel & Esser 5 1/2; Eli Lilly 9 1/4; Richardson 3 3/4; Fisher Scientific 6 points and Arson Suspected

In Camp Fires Near Union City

CORRY — State trooper Albert Vota, based at Corry, suspects that arson was the cause of two early Friday morning fires that occurred within a mile of each other west of Union City.

Two head of cattle were destroyed in a $100,000 blaze on the John Boleratz farm at RD 1, Waterford and then two hours later at 5 a.m. a vacant house burst into flames.

He said that a preliminary investigation showed that the barn fire started near a silo and the house fire started from inside the dwelling.

President Andrew Jackson was the first president of the United States to travel by railroad. He traveled from Ellicott's Mills to Baltimore, a distance of 13 miles.

Plans Announced For New Structure To House Jamestown's New TV Station

Lowell W. Paxson, president of Trend Radio, Inc., yesterday announced plans for a new $300,000 studio building to house Jamestown's new TV station, WKSJ-TV, which will operate on UHF channel 26. Trend Radio Inc. also operates WKSJ AM and WKSJ stereo FM from 415 W. Fourth st. in downtown Jamestown.

The new structure to be built on a 30-acre tract of land in West Ellicott by the Barnes Construction Co. of Falconer, will include facilities for the production, administration and transmission from the company's three stations.

A 500-foot tower will also be constructed on the site, which is one of the highest in southern Chautauque County.

Paxson said Trend Radio plans to move its entire operation to the new building in early September and discontinue operations at 415 W. Fourth st.

The target date for beginning TV transmission over Channel 26 was given as late 1967, by which time the firm expects to employ 50 people.

The new building will include studios for transmission of full color programs, studios for AM and stereo FM broadcasts, a darkroom for processing film and an employees' lunchroom, as well as several control rooms and offices.

A parking area for 50 cars will adjoin the new structure.

Lints Named Outstanding Performer at Youngsville

By LARRY G. STEELE
Sports Editor

YOUNGVILLE - Nine records fell, Barry Lints of Harborcreek was named the outstanding performer and Warren Area High School retained its team title at the annual Youngsville Invitational Track and Field Meet here Saturday.

The first new mark came in the opening event under threatening skies, but eight more records went by the boards as the sun broke through and the day ended, appropriately enough, with Lints setting his second standard.

Warren's thincads accounted for three new records on the way to their second straight team championship, but had to hold off a strong challenge by both Harborcreek and North East, finally clinching first place on the final running event of the day and a tension-packed performance by John Zawacki.

Zawacki, entered in both the high and long jumps, had to forego his attempts in the latter event until he had completed his high jumping, then came through with a record effort of 20'1½", which also broke the old mark.

The Dragons also needed a record-setting pace in the mile relay to take home the team trophy. Harry Spackman, Dave Cobb, Dan O'Neil and Tim Donovan sprinted to a 3:35.3 clocking in the event, just two-tenths of a second under the mark established by a Blue and White foursome last year.

Warren finished the meet with 56 points. North East and Harborcreek both had 49, and Oil City finished in fourth place with 34 points.

Most Youngsville, Bradford and St. Marys tied for fifth place with 18 points each. Corry had 16, Northwestern of Albion collected 10, Kane scored nine, Wattsburg had seven and Eisenhower, the third county team in the event, had four points.

Jim Beichner accounted for the Dragons' third mark of the day in the triple jump. The versatile junior shattered Eagle Pat Shine's record of 40'3½" set last year with a 42'9¾" effort. Had he won the long jump over teammate Zawacki, Beichner would have been in contention with Lints for the Most Outstanding Athlete of the meet honor.

The incomparable Lints, however, had taken third in the triple jump, then established a new standard in the 180-yard low hurdles, covering the distance in :19.45, half a second better than Chuck Harvey's existing mark.

The Harborcreek senior completed his day's performance by high jumping 6'4½" in the last event, one-half inch higher than the old record.

Corry's Fred Corbett made a shambles of the shot put record, heaving the 12-pound ball 58'7" in the first complete event of the day. Corbett's best put was almost seven feet better than the mark set by Don Bliss of North East in 1964.

The biggest surprise of the meet came in the pole vault. Joe Pfister of Bradford soared over 13'10¼" to erase a mark of 13'7" set by Kane's Steve Turner last year and thought to be out of reach, at least for the present.

Two more records on the cinders were lowered, Steve Hammer of North East outdistancing the field in the two-mile run for a 9:58.5 clocking and Harborcreek's two-mile relay team posting an 8:22.1 that event.

The three team race for the championship trophy started early. Warren, Harborcreek and North East all held the lead at different stages of the competition, but the Dragons produced when the chips were down.

Several Blue and White thincads turned in better-than-expected performances and, in the long run, it was the unsung heroes that netted the locals the team award.

Marc Segel surprised all the experts by whipping the field in the 120-yard high hurdles, including favored Sam Dinger of Oil City. Segel nipped the Oil City at the tape in the finals in a time of :19.35 and the Dragons were off and running.

Donovan netted the Dragons badly-needed fourth-place points in the 100-yard dash, then Spackman and sophomore Rex Slocum came up with outstanding efforts in the 440 and 220-yard dashes respectively.

Spackman, a last-minute replacement in the quarter-mile run away with his beat to take a third place and Slocum matched his effort in the 200.

Bill Shaffer stayed with a fast field to take fourth place in the two mile and Dave Cobb and Larry Maxwell earned third and fifth place points respectively for the Dragons in the mile run.

In the field, Warren was shut-out in the shot and javelin, but Mike Blech took third place in the discus behind two fine performers, Gary Carter of Youngsville and Northwestern's John Gillette, Carter winning with a 152'1½" throw.

Also scoring for the Blue and White were O'Neil, fifth in the 440; Segel fifth in the 120-high hurdles; Steve Beyer, fourth in the pole vault and Zawacki, fifth in the high jump.

Warren's 880-yard relay team of Joe Cauley, Chris Lytle, Slocum and Donovan took second place behind a strong North East foursome and the two-mile relay team of Pan Fanaritis, Jim Grillo, Wayne Mc Cartney and Gerry Grygo placed fourth.

Carter and Bruce Fitzgerald were the top performers for the host Eagles. Fitzgerald won the javelin with a toss of 167' 8½". Kay Burreigh was the only other individual place winner for the Red and White, taking fifth place in the long jump. The Eagle relay team took third in the two mile.

Martin Hoffner was Eisenhower's only individual place winner. The Knight sophomore finished fourth in the high jump and added a fifth place in the javelin. The Knight's two mile relay team placed fifth also.

Most of the events went to the pre-meet favorites. North East's Tom Daley took both the 100 and 220-yard dashes as expected and Oil City's Bruce Barr sprinted to the 440 championship.

Tom Cowser of Harborcreek outdistanced North East's Bill Murray in the mile, posting a 4:33.7 and Rich Arpin and Tom Nesgoda both of Harborcreek, finished one-two in the 880.

ON WAY TO RECORD

Warren's Dan O'Neil starts off on the third leg of the mile relay after receiving the baton from teammate Dave Cobb at Saturday's Youngsville Invitational. With no one to push them in their heat, the Dragons had to run against the clock and the effort proved successful as they posted a new record of 3:35.3. Harry Spackman and anchorman Tim Donovan completed the Blue and White foursome. (Photo by Mahan)

RECORD BREAKING EFFORT

John Zawacki, Warren Area High School senior, gets every ounce of effort into a long jump at the Youngsville Invitational to take first place and set a new meet record in the process. Zawacki soared 20-feet-8¾ to shatter Pat

Shine's mark of 20-1¾. His effort helped the Dragons win the first place trophy and surpassed an earlier jump by teammate Jim Beichner of 20-6, also a record for the event. (Photo by Mahan)

WINNING TOSS

Youngsville's Bruce Fitzgerald follows through after releasing the javelin at the Youngsville Invitational. Fitzgerald won the event with a toss of 167-8½. Gary Carter gave the Eagles another first place in the discus and the host team finished tied for fifth place with 18 points. (Photo by Steele)

Vietnamese Dead Totals 100,000

By NEIL SHEEHAN
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., asserted yesterday that civilian war casualties in South Vietnam are occurring at a rate of more than 100,000 a year.

In a statement made in response to inquiries by The New York Times, Kennedy said his conclusion was based on an investigation conducted in February and March by himself and the staff of his special Senate subcommittee on refugees and escapees. About 70 physicians and surgeons who had served in Vietnam were interviewed by the senator and the subcommittee staff and nearly 200 written reports submitted by physicians on their experiences in Vietnam were read.

The total of more than 100,000 civilian casualties a year, Kennedy said, "is derived from the fairly hard statistics of an average of at least 4,000 civilian casualties currently reaching medical centers each month and the virtually unanimous view of the medical personnel both here and in Vietnam that only one out of two or perhaps even one out of three civilian casualties actually reached these medical facilities."

Kennedy said his estimate includes "all casualties, whether inflicted by the Viet Cong, as often the case, or the result of United States or South Vietnamese military activity."

The statistics Kennedy referred to were obtained by the U.S. Agency for International Development mission in Saigon through surveys conducted at civilian and military hospitals in South Vietnam. The surveys showed 2,500 civilians hospitalized for war wounds in December, 4,150 in January and 3,920 in February. Figures for March and April are not yet available.

Members of the Senate subcommittee staff said they have reason to believe, as a result of their own investigation, that the statistics are still incomplete because some hospitals were not included and the number of civilian casualties admitted to others was understated.

Johannesburg Jews Clash With Germans

By ROBERT N. LINDSAY
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Feelings between Johannesburg's Jews and Germans ran high this weekend following a German-Jewish clash Friday night in a German beer cellar at densely populated suburban Hillbrow.

Police patrolled the Hillbrow area Sunday after two newspapers reported telephone calls that the beer cellar and the German consulate in Johannesburg would be bombed.

One of the callers said a dynamite bomb had actually been planted in the cellar but a thorough search by detectives found no trace of it.

The bomb warnings came after Friday's disturbances in which more than 200 police battled with dogs, clubs and tear gas to clear away a crowd estimated at 2,000 after a mass of Jewish youths converged on the beer cellar, frequented mostly by Germans. The disturbances followed earlier, smaller clashes between Germans and Jews in the Hillbrow area, where many German immigrants live.

The Jewish youths were protesting what they considered pro-Nazi and pro-Hitler demonstrations held recently at the beer cellar. They had been told that on Adolf Hitler's birthday, April 20, several hundred Germans sang "Deutschland Uber Alles," a patriotic song of the Nazi regime, and repeatedly shouted, "Heil Hitler!" and "Sieg Heil!"

Senate Drops Plans For Wiretap Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Plans for testimony by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover about past use of wiretapping and eavesdropping in federal crime enforcement have been abandoned.

"I do not plan at this time to call either," Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., said yesterday. Long is chairman of a Senate inquiry into bugging and other invasions of privacy.

"When the senator and Mr. Hoover were having this controversy I extended both of them an invitation to come testify," Long said.

"Neither accepted the invitation and I did not feel it was in the public interest to pursue the matter further."

To Demolish Derelict Houses

CORRY—The job of selecting derelict houses for demolition in this area will start this week according to an announcement by David Johnson, city engineer-administrator, and Carl Hixon, public works supervisor.

They said that if the condition of target buildings warrants it, they will condemn the houses as unfit for human habitation and legal steps will be taken to tear them down.

TIME FOR CHATTING

Dr. Donald Furman and his wife take time from the social whirl of the ball to chat with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kinney, Kinney is administrator of Warren General Hospital.

AMONG THE GUESTS

Joseph A. Williamson and Mrs. Williamson commissioner of hospitals and once was were at the ball, as were Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Smith. Williamson is Pennsylvania's Smith is chief of surgery at the hospital.

FULL HOUSE

Checkroom girls Mary Sandblade, Mimi Lewis, Cathy Teconchuk get last minute checkup from chairman Mrs. Robert Bowen, red. Klare McDonald already passed inspection.

Hospital's Annual Charity Ball a Huge Success

GREETING THE GUESTS

Tweedle-dee and Tweedle-dum (Faith and Lynn Wilkin) greeted the guests at the front door of the Woman's Club. Guests entering are Mr. and Mrs. William Hesche.

"I have often seen a cat without a grin, but I've never seen a grin without a cat."

Had Alice in Wonderland been at the annual Charity Ball of the Warren General Hospital auxiliary on Saturday night, she would have seen a lot of grins, all without cats.

The grins were on the happy couples who attended the annual event, a high point of the social season in Warren. The theme of the ball was "Through the Looking Glass".

Fairy land creatures lent excitement to the ball that brightened the Women's Club.

According to Mrs. Robert Bowen, general chairman for the ball, about 300 persons attended and had a good time dancing to the music of the Max Davis Trio Plus Three from the Hotel Jamestown.

Co-chairmen for the decorations were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kay and they were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rapp, Mrs. Jack Donaldson, Mrs. Creed Erickson Jr., Mrs. John Dalton, Mrs. Bert Levinson, Mrs. LeRoy Schneck, Mrs. Harry W. Conarro Jr., Mrs. Arthur J. O'Connor, Clarence Pearson and Beth and Jane Culbertson.

Mrs. Richard Krapfel and her committee, Mrs. Harold John-

NEARLY EVERYONE WAS AT THE BALL

The dance floor of the annual charity ball was the auditorium of the Woman's Club on Market street. The ball was well attended by residents from throughout the county and was a huge success, chairman Mrs. Robert Bowen said. The ball followed a theme of "Alice Through the Looking Glass."

son and Mrs. Thomas Marsh were in charge of general admission. Character creations were by Mrs. Richard Betts and Mrs. Richard McClain. Mrs. John Haggerty was in charge of the program and John Newmiller organized the Candy-stripers.

LET'S TALK SOME MORE ABOUT ANTIQUES: The time is almost here when the atmosphere of times long gone will prevail at the Woman's Club. Next Thursday, May 18th, the "Lavender and Old Lace" antiques show and sale will open for two days. It perhaps hasn't been stressed enough that in conjunction with the show, but separate from it, a luncheon of chicken salad, dessert and coffee will be served, for which a limited number of tickets will be sold. Mrs. Harold Johnson and her Woman's Club Entertainment Committee are responsible for this portion of the two-day event, and Mrs. Howard Alexander, in charge of decorating for the luncheon intends to carry on with the theme of "Lavender and Old Lace." Serving hours on both days will be from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. For luncheon tickets, at $1 each, you might wish to call Mrs. Johnson at 723-5791. Now, about the antique show and sale itself—The following antique dealers will be here with their specialties: Mr. Robert Lesses of "The Silver Shop," Buffalo, N.Y., with outstanding pieces of antique silver and jewelry; Mrs. Fred Orzen of the "Country Wagon Antiques," Chardon, Ohio, with furniture and other antiques; from Jamestown, N.Y., the owner of "The Brass Trivet Shop," Mrs. Jayne M. Ormesbee, who along with other items will have some furniture; Bernice V. Thayer of Erie; Mrs. M. Arthur of "M. Arthur Antiques," Erie; Mrs. Caroline Keating of Bradford "The Alphabet Shop"; Mrs. Hazel Sutley of Smethport; Mr. and Mrs. John Nagy "Nagy's Antique Lamp and Brass Shop" of Marchand, Penna.; Mr. William Graham of North Warren; George and Ann Thackie "Antiques" of Curwensville, Penna.; Mrs. Katie Crain of Port Allegany; Mrs. Gerry Moyer of Oil City; Mrs. Martha Owens of Erie's "Owens Antiques"; and last, but not least, Warren's own "The Tree Shop." One of the 15 booths will be operated by members of the Woman's Club just to show (no selling at this booth) their own interesting collection of antiques. Tickets at 75 cents for the show and sale may be had by calling the Woman's Club at 723-5910; Mrs. Robert Probst, ticket chairman, at 723-4489; or Mrs. James J. Rogan, general chairman, at 723-5810—Also, at the B & B Smoke Shop, and Sires United News Stand. One more thing, there are to be special awards at the show and sale.

A HAPPY WEDDING ANNIVERSARY TODAY to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nielsen of 609 West Fifth avenue, who are quietly observing their 47th anniversary with members of their family: Son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Wise; Don Nielsen, son; and their grandchildren, Butch Wise, Mrs. Les (Karen Wise) Rickey, and Mrs. William (Judy Wise) Massa.

MINIATURES: Mr. and Mrs. S. Schrader (the former Barbara Wilson of Irvine) have left for a three-year tour of duty with the United States Navy in Gaeta, Italy. The Schraders were guests for a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Dailey of Irvine.

Ripon College, Ripon, Wisconsin, sent word that Mrs. J. H. DeFrees was among those expected to attend the formal inauguration of President Bernard S. Adams at the college on Saturday.

Kinzua Campers are meeting for a campout on the weekend of May 19th at Brokenstraw Valley Camp Grounds on Route 6, Pittsfield. Members will bring hotdogs and rolls. Officers, who will be hosts for the three-day gathering, promise fun for all.

Thursday May 18th is the date Court De La Roque, Sheffield, has chosen for its Mother-Daughter banquet at St. Paul's Center, 6:30 p.m. They have invited Court Warren C. D. of A and ask that reservations be made before Thursday of this week (May 11th). Call Mrs. Dan Doherty at 723-1483 after 6 p.m.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a fairly dignified man. He has a good sense of humor but his tastes are quite elegant. His secretary is a raucous, earthy type who has a voice like a hog-caller and she considers herself a comedian. This woman is forever thinking up gags which are childish and lowbrow. At Christmas time she showed up in a Santa Claus suit (heard and all) and romped around the office singing Christmas carols. For Valentine's Day she wrote a poem for my husband—42 verses on toilet paper, which she strung around his office.

For St. Pat's Day the idiot sent him a rock through the mail. It must have weighed 20 pounds. To the rock she attached a card saying, "This is the blamey stone, but don't kiss it. Kiss me instead."

My husband is fed up with her nonsense but he doesn't want to hurt her feelings so he pretends to be amused. I feel this is a mistake. What is your opinion?—P.L.J.

DEAR P.L.J.: So long as he pretends to be amused she will continue to do nutty things. Your husband should tell the woman "no more gags." And let's hope he tells her soon or she may decide to blow up the office for the Fourth of July.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sick and tired of reading letters in your column from teenagers who feel abused because they have to do some housework and ironing. They all act as if they are being exploited as slave labor. Please let me have a few lines of type to talk to these kids. I know because I've been there.

My mother thought it was mean to make children work. I was 14 before I had made a bed or washed a dish. Then it was at camp, not at home that I had to do these things. I hated it.

I married at 18 and that's when the trouble began. My husband said he wasn't going to stand for my laziness and I'd better start to keep house or he was leaving. Ann, I wasn't lazy; I was ignorant.

In a frantic effort to save my marriage I called HIS mother, not mine. I asked her to please come over and teach me how to keep house. She was shocked at what I didn't know but, God bless her, she DID teach me. So do yourselves a favor, girls, learn when you are 11 and 12. It's 10 times easier when you are young and single.—JANIE COME LATELY

Judith Eileen Becker Bride Of Charles Eugene Higgins

The Garland Presbyterian Church, Garland, was the scene of a candlelight nuptial service uniting in marriage Judith Eileen Becker and Charles Eugene Higgins on Saturday afternoon, May 6, at 2:30 o'clock. The Rev. Donald Douds, pastor of the Ripley Presbyterian Church at Ripley, N.Y., read the double ring wedding rites in the presence of thirty members of the two families. Acolyte for the service was Thomas Gentz of Youngsville, nephew of the groom.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Russell Becker of Garland, and the groom is the son of Mr. Harold H. Higgins of Youngsville, and the late Mrs. Higgins.

Ornamenting the altar were banks of palms, baskets of white gladioli and snapdragons, and the double brass candelabra which held the lighted tapers. Music was provided by two close friends of the bride and groom, Miss Mary Elizabeth Sudak of Aliquippa, organist, and Robert G. Beach of East Randolph, N.Y., vocal soloist.

Escorted on the arm of her father, the bride appeared in a gown of ivory silk organza over bridal taffeta, styled with folded bodice of re-embroidered imported Alencon lace with scalloped portrait neckline, fitted waistline and elbow length sleeves; the princess skirt had panels of the lace falling from the waistline to the floor. An attached cathedral train swept out in graceful folds from a bow at the back waistline. Her fingertip bouffant veil was of English silk illusion and she carried a cascade of staphanotis, white gardenias and English ivy.

Mrs. Robert Keiser of Upper Darby, Pennsylvania, sister of the bride was the matron of honor and wore a floor length sheath of light blue linen, a headpiece of butterfly silk illusion veiling secured by a matching Dior bow, and carried a cascade of white roses. The flower girl was Joan Dentise Gentz of Youngsville, niece of the groom.

The best man was William A. Pollard of Youngsville, and the usher was Ensign George L. Becker, U.S.N., of Milton, Florida, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a mint green ribbon three-piece ensemble with matching hat, bronze accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. Mrs. Elizabeth Becker, grandmother of the bride was also remembered with a corsage of white carnations.

A reception was held at The Driftwood in Jamestown where decorations included arrangements of staphanotis and white snapdragons with English ivy and the four tier wedding cake. Aides were Mrs. George L. Becker of Milton, Florida, and Miss Mary Lewis Ross of Pikeville, Kentucky.

For a wedding trip to New York City and Jamaica, the new Mrs. Higgins wore a three-piece grey linen traveling costume with patent accessories and a corsage of white gladioli. Mr. and Mrs. Higgins will reside at 102 East Main street, Youngsville, after May 21.

The bride is a graduate of Youngsville High School and the University of Pittsburgh School of Pharmacy. She was formerly employed at Schiller's Pharmacy, Shadyside, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and will now be associated with the Jones Pharmacy in Youngsville. The groom, a graduate of Youngsville High School, attended Perkiomen Preparatory School and served with the U.S. Navy. He is employed by the C. W. Smith Company.

Pre-nuptial affairs were given by Mrs. William A. Pollard, Mrs. Chester Radecki, Mrs. William Fitzgerald and Mrs. Frank Briggs. The rehearsal dinner was given by the father of the groom at The Deerhead Inn on Friday evening, May 5.

MRS. CHARLES EUGENE HIGGINS (Kofod Studio)

Wedding guests from out of town came from Titusville, Youngsville, Upper Darby, Warren, Aliquippa, Pennsylvania; Randolph, N. Y.; Milton, Florida; and Pikeville, Kentucky.

DEAR JANIE: Many thanks for your testimonial. And I hope you pay attention, students. This is one of your own talking.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When are the wives in this country going to wake up to the fact that all men are a little nuts in one way or another? It's part of a man's nature.

I refer to the wife who complained about her husband who is a "TV Sports Nut." Would she rather have a "Whiskey Nut" or a "Race Track Nut" or a "Pin Ball Nut"? Or perhaps she would prefer a "Ham Radio Nut" or a "Gin Rummy Nut" or a "Motorcycle Nut." So long as a man isn't a "Girlie Nut" a wife should keep still. Please, Ann, tell the complaining women who write about such things to find a hobby and shut up.

By the way, Ann, what kind of nut are YOU married to? Let us in on it.—NOSEY ROSIE

DEAR ROSIE: I am married to a "Work Nut," but then he's married to one, too, so I am not complaining.

Sue Anne Lowe, a sophomore at Marietta College, majoring in Sociology, as a member of the advanced folk dancing class at Marietta, participated in a folk dance assembly recently.

The group danced in costume, Greek, Philippine, Mexican, Israeli, American, Swiss, Russian and other international folk dances. Miss Lowe, is also a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority, and a member of the Sociology Club and the International Students' Association, and WCMO.

A 1955 graduate of Warren Area High School, she is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Lowe of Warren, and Dr. Raymond E. Lowe of Warren.

GIFT FROM CONNECTICUT ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — The congregation of St. James's Episcopal Church, West Hartford, Conn., which sent $1,500 last year to help meet the cost of a students' chaplaincy at Aberdeen University, have repeated the gift this year. There are strong links between Aberdeen and the diocese of Connecticut.

The first Episcopal bishop, the Rt. Rev. Samuel Seabury, was consecrated in Aberdeen, and the Rev. Douglas Kennedy, rector of St. James's, West Hartford, is an honorary canon of St. Andrew's Cathedral, Aberdeen.

Kitty Laurich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Laurich of 438 Conewango, is heading the flowers committee for May Day at Mount Union College in Alliance, Ohio. A freshman, she is a pledge of Alpha Xi Delta sorority and a member of the college orchestra.

May Day, an annual event at Mount Union, is scheduled for Saturday, May 13. Following the pageant, a reception will be held, and activities include a dance in the Hoover-Price Campus Center.

Plan Annual Surprise Breakfast

At the monthly dessert meeting of the Welcome Wagon Newcomers Club, it was decided that the annual Surprise Breakfast will be arranged in June. The meeting was held on Thursday evening last week, in Fellowship Hall of First Presbyterian Church.

It was also announced that tickets for the Spring Dinner Dance which is to be held at Jackson Valley Country Club on Saturday, June 3, may be obtained by calling Mrs. Richard Marchione at 723-7053, or Mrs. Michael Mead at 723-8079.

A representative from the League of Women Voters, Mrs. Theodore P. Prodromou, gave information on the eightamendments and constitutional revisions on the ballot for the Primary Election on May 16. Helen McDonald (Mrs. Khlare McDonald) well known dancing instructor, presented a program of physical fitness. After a brief history of the dance, Mrs. McDonald demonstrated ballet positions and exercises, with members participating. Red Ribbons introduced at the meeting were Mrs. John Carey, Mrs. Louis Henry, Mrs. Karl Pirlem, Mrs. Thomas Tonnator and Mrs. Donald Wetsch.

More than 38,000 computer systems were being used in the United States at the beginning of 1967.

EYEGLASSES BY MAIL ORDER

There are legitimate firms that fill prescriptions for eyeglasses by mail, but eyeglasses can not be adequately and safely fitted by mail. The human eye is complex and delicate and should not be tampered with by anyone. Glasses should be fitted only by a professionally trained person.

BALDNESS CURES

There are no drugs or treatment methods which can cure baldness, or "feed" the hair roots or scalp. Hair is not a plant and will not respond to any external application.

HEARING AIDS

Before investing in a hearing aid — investigate. Never purchase a hearing aid before consulting a qualified medical specialist (otologist).

It is your right and privilege to have your prescription filled at a pharmacy of your choice. Choose wisely on the basis of professional competency and price fairness.

The ABC'S Of Homemade Beauty

There's a famous beauty spa in California which specializes in treatments based on ingredients found in almost every kitchen or bathroom cabinet. They're effective and fun to try at home. You'll save money, too, if you follow these treatments and other easy-to-do tips from A to Z:

A—All-Over Scrub: A scrub brush (the floor-scrubbing kind) and a good soap will bring a smooth glow to your body. Begin gently, working up to a tingling sudsy scrub. Finish with a cool rinse.

B—Baking Soda: Use straight from the box as a dentifrice or diluted as a breath sweetener.

C—Castor Oil: A non-allergic eye lubricant. Apply under eyes, blot with tissues ten minutes after application.

D—Dancing: Modern "new beat" dances can help control your weight. Emphasize the movements that are most effective for you. Wiggle your wobbly parts.

E—Egg Mask: Try this for dry skin. Use 1 fresh egg yolk, 1 tsp. powdered skim milk, 1 tsp. cream, 1/2 tsp. honey. Beat with fork until creamy. Apply to face and throat, leave on 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse with warm, then cold water.

F—Fresh: The ideal state in which to use all beauty products. Keep supplies containing oils such as creams, lipsticks and perfumes, in a cool, dark place.

G—Glycerine: A great skin balm. Combine with twice as much rose water (available at the drugstore) for an inexpensive and effective hand lotion.

H—Honey: Add 1/2 tsp. skim milk powder to 2 tsp. honey; whip with fork. Apply to face and neck, sponge off with warm water after 10 minutes. Fabulous face tightener and brightener for sluggish skin.

I—Ice: For wide-awake eyes, chip ice and wrap in clean soft cloth. A man's hankie is perfect. Press lightly under eyes for several minutes to reduce puffiness. The A.M. secret of many a star!

J—Just a Reminder: For the glow of beauty, take a brisk beauty walk each day in all sorts of weather.

K—Kaolin Mask: Take 2 tsp. of kaolin (a clay obtainable at any drug store) and enough witch hazel to make a paste the consistency of heavy cream. Spread evenly over the face. When dry, wash off with warm water.

L—Lemons: For a sun-streaked effect in hair, use well-strained juice of three lemons plus better than equal amount of warm water. Pour over hair as final rinse and sun-dry while brushing.

M—Mayonnaise: Pat on straight from the jar for a lubricating facial. (Avoid if skin is blemished.)

N—Never: Never think what works for your friend will necessarily work for you. Everyone's body chemistry differs.

O—Oils: All unsaturated oils, such as corn, safflower, sesame, cottonseed, peanut, olive and avocado, are good for you—outside as well as inside.

P—Peroxide: The household variety is effective as a mild bleach for facial hair. Leave on for fifteen minutes at a time, then sponge off with warm water.

Q—Questions: If you have any questions regarding the use of homemade beauty preparations, please send them in.

R—Rose water: Add to bath water for a lovely, feminine scent.

S—Salt: An effective mouth-wash and gargle. Use 1 tsp. to a glass of warm water.

T—Talcum Powder: A wonder aid for removing grease stains from clothes. Apply thickly, let set, then brush off.

U—Use: These homemade beauty preparations as a regular money-saving part of your grooming routine.

V—Vinegar: A half water and half vinegar solution controls dandruff and adds shine to your hair.

W—Witch Hazel: Excellent astringent for all types of skin.

X—Xtra fun: can be yours by discovering your own homemade beauty recipes.

Y—Yogurt: Pat on face, let dry, rinse off with warm, then cool water. Makes a refreshing facial.

Z—Zillions: of compliments will be yours if you follow the ABC's of Homemade Beauty.

COED THEOLOGY SCHOOL
DURHAM, England (AP)—Cranmer Hall, Durham, will become the Church of England's first co-educational theological college next October. The women will live in a separate block from the 47 male students but share their chapel, dining-room and common room. Canon James Hinchinbotham, the 51-year-old principal of the college, says "The men are very pleased about the women coming."

The women will train for full-time parish work.

ACTOR TO COACH PRIESTS
LONDON (AP)—English actor Raymond Clarke has been appointed to conduct a two-month course for newly ordained priests in communications and the spoken word at the Oblate Fathers' Scholastic Internationale in Rome. It is the first time such a course has been organized by the Roman Catholic Church.

YWCA Officially Revises Its Statement Of Purpose

In the historic city of Boston, where the 24th National Convention of the Young Women's Christian Association was held last week and where a century ago (1866) the current name of the organization was used for the first time in the United States, the YWCA took the historic step of officially revising its statement of purpose.

Present from the Warren YWCA were its president, Mrs. Donald H. Spencer, and chairman of the adult activities committee, Mrs. Nelson Johnson.

Another unprecedented action at the convention was the election of the first Negro as national president, Mrs. Robert W. Clayton, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, who also was the first Negro woman to be president of a city YWCA, the Association in Grand Rapids where she served from 1949 to 1951.

The new statement of purpose establishes the YWCA as Christian and open to women and girls of all faiths and no faith.

The convention action followed a three-year study under the direction of a National Commission to Study the YWCA as a Christian Movement.

The new purpose reads as follows: "The Young Women's Christian Association of the United States of America, a movement rooted in the Christian faith as known in Jesus and nourished by the resources of that faith, seeks to respond to the barrier-breaking love of God in this day. The Association draws together into responsible membership women and girls of diverse experiences and faiths, that their lives may be open to new understanding and deeper relationships and that together they may join in the struggle for peace and justice, freedom and dignity for all people."

U.S. Secretary of Interior, Stewart Udall, keynote speaker, said, women "could do much to clean up the slovenly cities, the ugliness and the polluted world we have created which is doing so much to demean us." He urged YWCA members to intensify their efforts to better the relationship of people and environment.

After much discussion, the convention went on record as calling upon the United States to take continuing steps to end the bombing of Vietnam and to consider ending, in the name of humanity, the use of napalm and fragmentation bombs. The delegates also resolved to concentrate efforts, nationally and locally, to urge the U.S. Senate to ratify the U.N. Conventions on Human Rights, namely: Genocide, the political rights of women, the abolition of slavery, and the elimination of all forms of racial discrimination.

It was pointed out that the only other countries who have not ratified the conventions are Yemen, Spain and South Africa.

WON'T BE STOLEN FROM ANTAR

CAIRO (AP)—The Cairo's Zoo lion called "Antar" is in charge of the Mosque's amplifier used for the Muezzin prayers.

During the holy month of Ramadan last, a thief absconded with the amplifier.

Contributions were made by many Moslems which endowed a new one.

The zoo manager, in order to forestall another theft, placed the amplifier in Antar's cage.

Cootiettes To Assist With Poppy Sales This Month

Chief Grayback Ann Swanson presided at the recent meeting of the Hayseed Cootiette Club No. 302 in the V.F.W. Post room. Chaplain Kate Lingo requested that the Cootiettes assist the V.F.W. Post and Ladies Auxiliary with the Poppy sales the 19 and 20 of this month.

Secretary Alice Nasman reported that there will be a testimonial dinner to honor the State Grand Grayback at the V.F.W. in Glenside; also that the State Grand will hold its meeting in Altoona in June. It was voted to send checks to the Sundowners and the Music Boosters.

Tentative plans were discussed concerning the summer family picnic. There will be a special meeting to make the final decisions, since there are no regular meetings in June, July and August.

Chief Grayback Swanson requested that as many as possible participate in the Memorial Day parade and ceremonies. Anyone wishing a ride will please call Mrs. Swanson at 723-1249 or be at the V.F.W.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR MONDAY, MAY 8, 1967.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—If you are realistic, as you should be, you will take this day, with its fine values and opportunities AND its annoyances, in your usual sensible manner. Some obstacles, many advantages.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Your affairs should run smoothly and the results expected of you culminate happily if you aim for them with foresight and consistency. Home and family interests, travel and business agreements favored.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—A generally good day, but be alert and don't fall for propositions offered by those who have proven unreliable in the past.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Planetary influences suggest a calm demeanor and steadiness to combat irritating conditions. Curb a tendency to wander from prescribed course; see both sides of all situations.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Remember that ambition can destroy its possessor, and that overaggressiveness can antagonize others. Remembering this, (and Leoites, especially, should ALWAYS keep these thoughts in mind) you can have a fine day.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—An excellent time in which to establish the basis for a more settled way of life. Plan all moves wisely and with future security in mind.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—A king-sized order for this day consists of concise planning, accurate accounting and movement, and winding up as enthusiastically and precisely as you begin. You can do it!

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23)—Take all the help you can get. Don't try to do everything yourself. Also, don't settle for "the lesser of two evils" when you can prevent ANY unwanted conditions.

SAGITTARIUS (November 24 to December 21)—Longing without doing something definite about achieving those wishes is not like the real you. Forward strides in business, family matters and other areas CAN be made if you emphasize your gift for clever management.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—A good day for carrying out worthwhile plans, activities. Don't scatter energies or follow uncharted courses, but pursue your way steadily, confidently.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Don't merely wish for success. Work for it, in whatever form desired. Start early, and do not watch the clock; you will make fine strides—and be happy in the doing.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—A long time spent over one matter tends to dull senses and incentive. A little daring, rightly engineered, could flavor things smartly.

YOU BORN TODAY have a multitude of fine qualities and the potentials for attainment of a high order. Instantly you are precise, loyal, neat, full of love for mankind and things artistic. You may take up theatricals, writing, agriculture or architecture as a pastime and be as successful as in your regular work. Don't question your own ability, but strengthen it daily. Birthdate of: Harry S. Truman, 33rd Pres., U.S.A.

HOME FIRST AID KITS

A reader wants to know if I approve of first aid kits. "We have friends who believe that no home is complete without one. A well-equipped box can be found in their kitchen, garage, and car. Does your home have a kit?"

Yes, but it has not been opened for years. This is a good reminder to check the contents because adhesive tape may lose its stickiness and the gauze may not be sterile.

The situation in my home is somewhat different. My children are married and gone so our need for first aid equipment is minimal. In addition my little black bag is properly stocked. Several companies sell kits of different sizes for treating cuts, bruises, and minor burns. However, in order to be complete the articles must be replenished every time they are used.

First aid kits need not be elaborate. A cigar or shoe box will do. It should contain a dozen each of 2 by 2 and 4 by 4 sterile gauze dressings in sealed envelopes that should only be opened when ready for use. Useful also are a one or two inch roller bandage and adhesive tape. Include a box of assorted finger bandages. These bare essentials will take care of most minor cuts, bruises, and burns. Antiseptics are optional so long as the injured part is washed carefully. Cleanliness is a must.

Paul W. Myers

Paul Myers Has Major Role In 'Mary, Mary'

Paul W. Myers, a popular teacher in the Warren school system, will play a major role in the forthcoming Warren Players' production of "Mary, Mary."

As Oscar Nelson, a middle-aged tax lawyer, it becomes Paul's problem to straighten out the financial and marital entanglements of Mary and Bob McKellaway. Mary and Bob become involved in a romantic quadrangle stemming from their impending divorce and it is around this situation that the plot for the popular Jean Kerr comedy is drawn.

Prior to joining the faculty of Beaty Junior High School as a math teacher 15 years ago, Myers received degrees in education from the University of Pennsylvania.

Upon arriving in Warren he became immediately active in Warren Players and has assisted in numerous productions. Previous acting credits include: "The Male Animal", "Song of Bernadette" and "Caine Mutiny Court Martial". Paul has also directed a number of well-remembered productions including: "Wake Up Darling", "Room Service" and "The Tender Trap" which was the May show of a year ago.

"Mary, Mary" will be presented on the Beaty Auditorium stage Friday and Saturday evenings, March 12 and 13. Curtain time will be 8:30 for both performances. Those not holding season tickets may reserve seats for either night by phoning 723-1870 any evening next week.

Gold Star Ranges Help Stretch Food Budgets

Has the rising cost of food got you down? Do you constantly seek the way to stretch your food budget and still provide delicious, nutritious meals? You can, if you use Gold Star ranges. Gold Star ranges are built to last and are easy to use. They feature a built-in oven with a self-cleaning cycle that removes grease and grime from the oven interior. This feature makes it easy to keep your oven clean and ready for use. Gold Star ranges also feature a built-in broiler that allows you to broil meats and vegetables without the need for a separate broiler. This feature saves space and money. Gold Star ranges are built to last and are easy to use. They feature a built-in oven with a self-cleaning cycle that removes grease and grime from the oven interior. This feature makes it easy to keep your oven clean and ready for use. Gold Star ranges also feature a built-in broiler that allows you to broil meats and vegetables without the need for a separate broiler. This feature saves space and money.

Heat, for example, can be flame-cooked in a variety of ways to bring out their full flavor and mouth-watering juiciness. Delicate sauces that make an ordinary dish "fit for a king," appetizing casseroles and soups, tempting ragouts and pressure-cooked foods are inexpensive solutions to the budget. All of these items can be cooked slowly on top of the range for several hours or more without fear of overcooking or burning. The amazing thermostatic control, called a "burner-with-a-brain," takes over the pot-watching, raising and lowering the flame as needed to maintain the exact temperature setting.

Another time and money-saving feature on gas ranges built to Gold Star standards is the low-temperature oven control that automatically keeps an entire meal ready-to-serve for several hours without continued cooking. Meals cooked to perfection are no longer ruined because dinner was unavoidably delayed. Roasts stay rare or medium rare at 140 degrees until the family is ready to eat. Or you may prefer one of the new infrared gas ranges that cut cooking time and fuel consumption by 50 percent. These radiant heated ranges are winning praise from homemakers for their ability to seal-in natural juices, provide even browning and keep shrinkage and spatter to a minimum.

'Good as New' Old Stove Lacks Modern Controls

How old is an old cook-stove? A lot depends on what kind it is and how well it has been maintained. A government agency that makes a study of such things says the average gas range should have a lifetime of 12 to 15 years, longer than any other kind because it hasn't any moving parts to wear out—nor any parts that can burn out.

While the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association would naturally be the last to contend that a gas range is subject to any infirmities to age, it points out that longevity does have its disadvantages.

"For example," says GAMA, "a housewife who operates a range over 12 or 15 years old is being penalized in menu selection, food flavor, and time that she could be using profitably in other ways."

"Dozens of modern features are missing from ranges installed before 1951. In fact, many of the major improvements did not occur till about 1960."

TOP-BURNER CONTROLS
The trade group says these include the "burner with a brain," a thermostatically controlled top burner that enables you to pre-set heat for delicate top-of-the-range cooking operations, and the "programmed" oven for unattended, completely automatic roasting and baking. Other features in up-to-date ranges are the keep-warm oven control that prevents overcooking of meats when meals can't be served on time, the built-in meat probe to insure cooking of meat to an exact degree of doneness, the built-in griddle, the rotisserie, the infrared broiler that produces fast, even heat and reduces meat shrinkage, and low-heat pilot lights that reduce kitchen heat and operating costs.

EYE-HEIGHT BROILER
Also missing in old-type ranges are slide-in, built-in and high console models for convenient installation and operation; door seals that provide better insulation and more uniform oven temperatures; range construction of a type that eliminates seams and cracks where food particles can hide; and range parts that can be detached without tools and washed in the sink like dishes.

It's understandable, GAMA says, that a woman can become sentimentally attached to a range that's 20 years old, and "works as well as the day I bought it." But, the trade group adds, in these days when food costs are high and people like to organize their spare time, thought ought to be given to the money- and time-saving advantages, not to speak of the improved cooking results, that are built into the modern gas range.

BUS NAMED BROADWAY
NEW YORK (AP) — To make theater-going easier, a rush-hour bus service to Broadway is being tested.

The crosstown facilities are designed to serve East Side apartment houses and hotels whose patrons frequently experience trouble in reaching Times Square theaters — on the West Side of town — by certain time. Four buses will provide showgoers with return transportation after evening performances. Cost of three-month experiment is being underwritten by a (Columbia) record company.

Public Can Take JCC TV Courses

There will be two or three more discussion meetings scheduled in the television courses being offered at Jamestown Community College before the final examination is given for courses in sociology and history.

Paul J. McBroom, instructor of social science, noted non-credit program watches are invited to the discussion groups and can take the final examination if they like. McBroom also said the mid-term examination may also be taken by those wishing to do so.

The next sociology discussion group is scheduled for Wednesday, May 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the main conference room. On May 24 the final session will be held at 7:30 in the same location and will be a summary review. The final examination will be held on Saturday, May 27 from 2 to 5 p.m. in room M-24 of the Collegiate Center.

McBroom also announced that final sessions in the History of the Early Middle Ages Course will be held on May 5 and 19 at 7:30 in the Main Conference room. Final exams in this course will take place on Saturday, May 27 from 9-12 noon in room M-24.

Anyone who is interested in watching the television series over channel 4 or Cablevision 5 on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 6:30 to 7 a.m. is invited to do so.

Northeastern Drought Breaking; Area Supply Up

WASHINGTON—Federal water experts will not dismiss the northeastern drought because of below normal streamflow and ground-water supplies in some of the Northeast.

Henry Barksdale, staff engineer of the Geological Survey, said streamflows had recovered to near normal and above in most of the Northeast but that there were exceptions. These include Maine, the Potomac River Basin and southward into North Carolina, where flows ranged from 50 per cent of normal to "significantly below normal."

He described the water supplies of New York City as in "good shape—better than normal for this time of year." Of "outstanding significance," he said, was the fact that the Cannonsville Reservoir in the Upper Delaware River Basin now holds 91 billion gallons of water or about 95 per cent of capacity.

He noted that New York may now draw its allocation of 490 million gallons a day from the river and that the release of water to other downstream communities, such as Philadelphia and Trenton, N.J., must be increased.

Barksdale said the ground water, or water in natural underground reservoirs, also are variable. "Along the western border of the region in New York State, Western Pennsylvania, and West Virginia," he said, "ground-water levels have generally recovered to normal."

However, he added, "in what seems to be the 'heartland' of the drought, along the Atlantic Coast from southeastern Massachusetts to southern New Jersey and southeastern Pennsylvania, ground-water levels are generally still below normal, though higher than last year."

Barksdale said, "It might be said that conditions in the Northeast are such as might be expected at the end of the drought."
